Illegal acts OK'd under proposed domestic spying

WASHINGTON (AP) — Burglaries and other illegal acts would have been used by the Central Intelligence Agency and Pentagon under a domestic spying plan proposed in secret White House documents, says Sen. Stuart Symington.

Symington, D-Mo., disclosed existence of the documents on Monday. He said the plans were never carried out.

Kissinger, Tho meet; see progress

PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho met for the fifth time today after Kissinger reported "some progress" in their earlier talks to revitalize the Vietnam ceasefire agreement.

President Nixon's national security adviser and the North Vietnamese Politburo member conferred for a total of 18 hours in their first four meetings that began last Thursday. Their deputies held a marathon 12-hour meeting Sunday and conferred again Monday until nearly midnight.

There were no indications whether the two sides were preparing an interpretive annex to the January ceasefire agreement. But the atmosphere surrounding the talks seemed friendly.

The North Vietnamese also removed a plaque offensive to the Americans from their villa at Gif sur Yvette, where the talks are held on alternate days. The plaque described the ceasefire agreement as a "victory for the Vietnamese people over imperialism."

Living costs spurt again for April

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living eased slightly in April but the increase still was extraordinarily high, the government reported today. Sharp advances were recorded in the cost of food, clothing, used cars and gasoline.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said consumer prices rose seventenths of one per cent last month, following a nine-tenths of one per cent jump in March. April's jump matched February's increase. March's jump was a 22-year record.

The bureau said food bought in grocery stores rose 1.6 per cent, less than in each of the preceding three months but considerably higher than usual for April.

Fruits and vegetables were higher than normal and beef prices continued to climb, but the government said the increase was much smaller than in recent months.

Prices on a broad range of consumer goods other than food moved up sharply in April, reflecting recent wholesale price increases since the Nixon administration dropped price controls in January.

Watergate testimony resumes

McCord denies clemency bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate conspirator James W. McCord Jr. today denied to Senate investigators that he had tried to persuade the White House to keep him out of jail.

He admitted sending an unsigned letter last December to former White House aide John J. Caulfield threatening that "every tree in the forest will fall, there will be a scorched desert..."

But he said the threat was meant to apply only if the Central Intelligence Agency were falsely blamed for the Watergate wiretapping.

"The letter...did not contain any message requesting any contact with Caulfield, nor any request for the White House to get me out of the case, or off the case. I in fact sought no such contact at any time," McCord testified.

McCord also conceded that he had deliberately made two telephone calls to foreign embassies in Washington in an attempt to be overheard on government wiretaps. But he denied that this was a ploy to undermine the government's case against him.

McCord said he made the calls to test the government's honesty. He was convinced his own telephone had been illegally wiretapped, he said, but believed the government would probably deny it if asked about it in court.

He said he tried to be overheard on other taps on embassy telephones to see if the government would admit overhearing him there. He said it didn't. News reports today identified the embassies as those of Israel and Chile.

McCord's credibility as a witness has been under discussion since last Friday, when he told the Senate Watergate investigating committee that Caulfield had pressured him with offers of executive clemency.

Caulfield was listed to follow McCord as a witness at today's televised hearings. He has admitted transmitting offers of executive clemency to McCord, but denied that he invoked President Nixon's name in doing it.

McCord said Caulfield told him the President was aware of the clemency offers and would be informed of McCord's reaction. The White House has repeatedly denied that the President authorized clemency offers to anyone in the Watergate case, or that he was aware of any attempt to cover up the scandal.

McCord today repeated his previously publicized account of how he came to believe that the White House was ruthlessly attempting to blame the CIA for the Watergate breakin, for which McCord and others were convicted of burglary, wiretapping and conspiracy.

He said he had been told through his lawyer, Gerald Alch, that others wanted him to contend at his trial that the CIA was behind the wiretapping and burglary.

McCord, who retired from the CIA after 19 years of service, refused to go along, he said. He said Alch indicated that the CIA's personnel records could be altered to make it appear that McCord had been recalled to service for the Watergate operation.

McCord said Alch persisted in efforts to blame the CIA. "By now, I was completely convinced that the White House was behind the idea...and that the White House was turning ruthless, and would do whatever was politically expedient," McCord said.

It was only then, he said, that he sent his letter to Caulfield.

"The letter read in substance as follows, to the best of my memory," he said. "Dear Jack, I am sorry to have to write you this letter. If (CIA Director Richard) Helms goes, and the Watergate operation is laid at CIA's feet where it does not belong, every son, William, said he and Sanders had been classmates together.

Police Chief Bill Price said officers arrived at the scene shortly before 4 p.m. EDT and were told by witnesses that the gunman had fled into a house down the street.

As one of the officers, Patrolman David Wayne Clark, 31, went to the rear of the house, the gunman jumped from behind the garage and fired a shot that struck the patrolman in the head. He then raced into another house.

With reinforcements on the scene,

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A six-member conference committee meets today to see if there is a chance for compromise in the stalemated effort to create a state lottery.

Sen. Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma, a member of the joint Senate-House committee and the main proponent of a lottery, said upon return from the weekend Monday there was "nothing new" in the standoff.

Mottl has mentioned the possibility of introducing a bill creating a lottery if Democrats—who control the House—and Republicans—who run the Senate—cannot agree on how the proceeds would be spent.

The pending measure would create a tree in the forest will fall, there will be a scorched desert. The whole matter is at the precipice right now. Pass the message that if they want it to blow, they're on exactly the right course. I'm sorry that you'll get hurt in the fallout."

On another matter McCord said he was told a plane owned by the mysterious billionaire Howard Hughes had been arranged for use in a plan, never carried out, to burglarize the safe of a Las Vegas newspaper publisher. The plane allegedly was to fly the burglars to a Latin American hideout after the breakin.

McCord said fellow conspirator G.

Gordon Liddy had told him that then-Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell told him that "blackmail" information on a Democratic candidate was in the safe of Hank Greenspun, publisher of the Las Vegas Sun. McCord has previously identified the candidate as Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

Supposedly the information would show that Muskie had connections to racketeers, and would be influenced by them if he ever became president, McCord said. But he added that he thought there was also some other motive for wanting to get into Greenspun's safe.

McCord testified that Liddy twice

went to Las Vegas to case the safe for possible burglary. After the second trip, in April or May 1972, McCord was told his own services wouldn't be needed for the planned burglary because there was no alarm system, he said. He quoted Liddy as saying at that time that the burglary team would be flown by a "Howard Hughes plane" to some Central American country after the break-in.

McCord said another of the Watergate conspirators, E. Howard Hunt, had told him the Hughes Tool Co. might need McCord's services after the election, but he never heard any more on the subject.

Could control 10 pct. of production

See gasoline allocations

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high official of the Nixon administration today challenged predictions gasoline prices will rise to astronomical levels this year.

"This concern is unfounded," Deputy Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, chairman of the administration's Oil Policy Committee, told a House panel on special small business problems.

Simon said there will be additional price increases in the future because of increases in the price of foreign crude oil.

"But crude oil accounts for only 20 per cent of the costs of producing gasoline," Simon said. "For instance, if the crude oil price were doubled, this would increase the price of gasoline by eight cents a gallon."

Simon gave the panel a rundown on the administration's program to increase oil and gasoline supplies and to set up a voluntary allocation program for this summer.

Simon disclosed that the voluntary plan will give priority to farmers; food processing and distribution services; health and medical services; police and firefighting services; mass transit; vital transportation services; other state and local government activities; the fuel needs of areas of the country hard hit by shortages; areas affected by natural disasters; public utilities, and communications.

He said that the program would be mandatory if the voluntary plan failed.

But other officials said a combination of the two approaches probably will be followed this summer. The voluntary plan would ask major oil companies to keep their unaffiliated customers supplied with oil and gasoline.

According to Treasury officials, spot shortages already are developing in several states, particularly in the Midwest. Complaints to the Interior Department's oil and gas office are increasing, they said.

An allocation system would affect primarily the oil companies. It is not gasoline rationing because consumers would not be limited to the amount of fuel they can purchase at the pump.

But some oil companies, anticipating a tight supply, already are adopting their own rationing programs for gasoline stations.

According to sources, the mandatory allocation program would probably be put into effect early in July. That is the time of peak demand for gasoline, when vacationers will be traveling to a greater extent. This demand is expected to drop off in the fall.

Skylab crewmen set for launch

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — With temperatures both hot and cold causing concern, preparations for the Skylab salvage mission centered on Cape Kennedy today as the three astronauts fly here and the countdown begins for a hoped-for launch on Friday.

Before traveling here, the astronauts were to practice repair jobs in a huge Alabama water tank. Flight controllers, meanwhile, are walking what one called "a thermal tightrope" in efforts to keep temperatures within reasonable limits.

There was fear that food and film might spoil in one end of the orbiting station where there are readings near 130 degrees, and that water might freeze and burst pipes at the other end where recordings plummeted to 34 degrees.

Officials hoped to develop maneuvers today to bring temperatures into better balance and hold them steady until the astronauts can rocket up to the orbiting laboratory on man's first space salvage mission.

If the astronauts are unable to deploy a solar shield similar to one ripped from the craft during launching, they will have to abandon the $294 million station in space.

The timetable remained tight for a planned launching of astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz at 9 a.m. EDT Friday. A decision on whether to proceed is expected Thursday from Skylab program director William C. Schneider.

Salvage preparations, which have been scattered at space centers and aerospace plants since the Skylab was launched eight days ago, now are converging here.

Awning-like sun shades designed to cool down the overheated lab and tools for releasing at least one jammed solar panel are to arrive here Wednesday for stowage aboard the astronauts' Apollo ferry ship.

Launch crews plan to start the countdown on the Saturn 1B rocket at 10:30 p.m. tonight, a few hours after Conrad, Kerwin, and Weitz fly here from NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center at Huntsville, Ala.

Richardson vote slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — With agreement hammered out on the role of the special Watergate prosecutor, the Senate Judiciary Committee was called into session today to act on Elliot L. Richardson's nomination to be attorney general.

Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said he hopes for Richardson's confirmation by the Senate before Congress recesses Thursday for Memorial Day.

The committee hearings ended Monday night with the members evidently satisfied that the outside prosecutor, Archibald Cox, will have the independence necessary to conduct the investigation.

Sen. Philip A. Hart of Michigan, a leading liberal Democrat, said the hearings had "pretty well laid down a degree of independence" for Cox.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A six-member conference committee meets today to see if there is a chance for compromise in the stalemated effort to create a state lottery.

Senators Monday passed and sent to the House a bill designed to solve a problem that has troubled administrators of both political parties for many years.

The bill, a product of a study by the fact-finding Legislative Service Commission, would spell out the dates for the beginning and end of the terms of members of 100 to 120 state boards and commissions.

Sen. Walter L. White, R-12 Lima, was among sponsors explaining that while the statutes list the length of terms in years, the law is silent as to when they begin and end. The result has been confusion for administrations dating back into the 1950s, White said.

Sen. David Headley, D-28 Barberton, a co-sponsor, said he checked with the office of Gov. John Gilligan and was told that the governor had no opposition to the measure.

Two other Senate bills were approved without significant opposition and sent to the House. They increase the amounts school boards may spend for accreditation purposes from $50 to $150 a year, and require the Division of Soil and Lands to make studies and surveys of land uses for distribution to the public and appropriate state agencies.

The House held only a skeleton session, but returns for floor sessions today.

GRAFFITI

THERE ARE TWO KINDS OF PEOPLE: THOSE WHO'LL ARGUE OVER ANYTHING, AND THOSE WHO'LL ARGUE OVER NOTHING

C5A prime example of waste

In the early 1960s, Defense Secretary Robert McNamara decided the way to cut defense costs was through a new procedure called total package procurement. It turned out to be one of the most expensive procurement techniques ever devised, as this second in a series from The AP Special Assignment Team demonstrates.

By JEAN HELLER

Associated Press Writer
BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — For the Lockheed Corp., building the C5A super cargo plane for the Air Force is like being beaten with a wet rope. It's going to be such a relief when it's over.

What looked like a fairly routine job when Lockheed won the contract to build the airplane in 1965 has turned into a nightmare of cost overruns, delivery delays, performance deficiencies and public ridicule.

—When the C5A was first ordered, it was estimated that 120 of the planes would cost just over $3.4 billion. Currently the Air Force has reduced the order to 81 aircraft at a total cost of more than $4.4 billion. The net result is that the unit price of the aircraft has nearly doubled.

—Delivery of the 81st plane, which will be the last, was scheduled for this month, two years behind schedule.

—The C5As delivered in 1971 had 251 deficiencies per aircraft. Last year was better, but each plane still had 126 deficiencies.

—The C5A was supposed to have a flying life of 30,000 hours. Without structural modifications and reductions in air speed and payload capacity, the Air Force now estimates the planes won't last beyond 6,500 hours in their assigned role of airlifting huge amounts of cargo or large numbers of troops.

—The fleet of C5As was supposed to be 75 per cent operationally ready at any given time. Because of unreliable aircraft components, inadequate training and numbers of maintenance personnel, only about 54 per cent of the fleet is operationally ready at any one time.

The Air Force estimates it will cost at least $259 million to fix these and other deficiencies in the C5A, but nothing can undo the fact that the airplane has been one of the worst examples of Pentagon procurement in history.

Some of the most serious problems with performance and cost can be traced back to the way the Lockheed contract was written, under a purchasing procedure called total package procurement.

"It was a complicated contract, a terribly complicated contract," Keith Anderson, Lockheed's corporate vice president for government contracts, said in an interview. "It's going to be a case study. They'll be using it in the Harvard Business School for the next 25 years as an example of what not to do."

In total package procurement, a would-be contractor makes a package bid on the development and production of an item. For the winning bidder, that package bid becomes a fixed-price contract, with fixed required performance specifications for the product and fixed delivery dates. Price, performance and delivery are inflexible.

"What they were asking us to do was develop something and price the production product at the same time," Anderson said. "But until you've developed something, you haven't got the faintest idea what producing it will cost. Yet that's the kind of judgement we had to make."

"What you're bidding is your best guess, but then if you win the contract, your best guess becomes your contract and you're locked in. If you've made a bad guess, you're in trouble."

And Lockheed made a very bad guess. There is no provision in a total package procurement for building prototypes or reproduction items, those early models on which bugs are ironed out. Under a TPP contract, all items built are supposed to be the real thing, and under that setup, problems don't begin to show up until the product is on the production line, the worst possible place to try to cope with trouble.

"In the C5A, the essential error that was made, as in so many of these big total package programs, is that they did not wait to go into production until they had all the problems shaken out of the system they were developing," David Packard, former deputy secretary of Defense, said in an interview.

"The desire of the military to accelerate a program and to define an operational date too early and consider that date as being fixed and to define the whole program that way makes the project more rigid than realistic."

"We thought we had an airplane project that would just require a scale-up of existing technology," Anderson said. "We were wrong. It was a far more difficult job than we had anticipated. We ran into problems that caused delays. Then the economy—inflation—took off on us. That made the delays terribly expensive, far above what the contract covered. And fixing the problems was made all the more difficult because the Air Force was so inflexible on the plane's performance."

Actually, that kind of inflexibility is designed as a cost control. Under TPP, no changes are supposed to be made in an item after a contract is signed because changes make the item more expensive. But the dictum also leaves no room for tradeoffs, the process of modifying one specification so another can be met. Tradeoffs in the development stage are invariably necessary since few new concepts ever work in reality the way they do on paper.

"There was a problem with the C5A being too heavy," Anderson said. "It wouldn't take off in the short distance the Air Force specified. That could have been taken care of with a little more power in the engines which was possible and wouldn't have cost much. But that would have changed engine specifications and the Air Force wouldn't permit it."

"It's like asking an automobile dealer for a car with a 500-horsepower engine that gets 30 miles to a gallon. He'll tell you you have to settle for one or the other or a combination somewhere in between. But if you're like the Air Force, you tell him you want what you asked for and that's it."

While Lockheed has been having problems because changes couldn't be made in specifications, Litton Industries is having trouble because changes were made in a TPP contract it holds.

Litton is building five giant Landing Helicopter Assault ships for the Navy at the company's modern, new Pascagoula, Miss., shipyard. Litton has threatened to take the Navy to court to settle financial claims the company made for reimbursement of costs incurred when the Navy made changes in the LHAs after the project was underway.

Citing the change orders, Litton is asking $1,056 billion for the five ships. The Navy has said it won't settle for more than $946 million.

"There was a whole slew of very significant changes made in the ship in terms of Navy requirements," Litton President Fred O'Green said in an interview at his Beverly Hills office.

"Under a total package contract the Navy shouldn't have been in the shipyard let alone changing the specification on the ships. We made a mistake when we didn't throw them out."

On the other side, Litton critics say a big part of the cost growth problem was the company's inability to get its new shipyard and shipbuilding techniques going efficiently, and Litton executives concede the project was badly run at the outset.

The first yard managers were airplane builders with no shipbuilding experience, a problem which has since been corrected. Moreover, the yard was using a new modular concept in shipbuilding and didn't get it shaken down before taking on the Navy's LHA contract plus a contract to build Navy destroyers.

However the Litton-Navy dispute is resolved, large total package procurements are no more. The Defense Department has decided they just don't work, something the contractors say they pointed out when Defense Secretary Robert McNamara first proposed TPP in the early 1960s. Since leaving the Pentagon in 1967, McNamara has refused all requests for interviews.

"We complained time and time again," O'Green said. "But they remembered the days when everything was cost plus fixed fee, when the contractor got a set fee plus all his costs. Whole companies, even whole industries were built at government expense. So McNamara pushed the pendulum all the way across the board."

"The whole idea of trying to price something you've never designed or built before is absurd," said Robert Anderson, president and chief operating officer of Rockwell International. "This company complained as loudly as anybody else that it was absurd, and yet we went out with the others and bid on total package contracts."

"We bid on those jobs and we took them when we won because it was our business to take them. It was either take them or go out of business. We don't operate in a free market situation. If we don't like the way one guy wants to deal we can't go out and deal with somebody else. If the Defense Department doesn't like our bomber design, we can't go sell it to Russia or China."

"So when the Defense Department says we're going to do it this way, we do it this way. They're the only game in town."

NEXT: Buy-ins and Bail-outs.

Peking's Press effrontery

The Chinese government has overtly attempted to influence the advertising policy of the New York Times. The kindest thing to be said is that this piece of effrontery must be based on failure to understand what freedom of the press is all about.

Peking has often voiced more or less informal objections to the Times' publication of political ads paid for by anti-Peking groups and the Chiang Kai-shek regime in Taiwan. Recently the level of objection was stepped up: the counsel to the Chinese mission to the United Nations protested face to face to the paper's managing editor.

The editor replied that it was a matter of policy to carry advertisements expressing any political view, whether or not the Times agrees with it. He said it was felt that this is a part of freedom of the press. The editor also asked, "Does that mean you will not allow us to open a bureau in Peking?" and received the reply, "You can draw your own conclusions."

The conclusion one comes to is that this is indeed what Peking means: knuckle under to our official views on political ads, or forego the privilege of maintaining a bureau in our capital city. That is, as remarked above, a piece of effrontery.

If Peking genuinely seeks to improve U.S.-Chinese relations, it would do well to recognize that it cannot tamper with American freedom of the press.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Millions of Chinese work as one

HANGCHOW — You start in China with the 800 million and, the new social order having released their energies, they are everywhere. For the newcomer the impression is of a people moving irresistibly forward.

On a Sunday the Great Wall is black with masses marching up the steep slopes to the highest watch towers. They have been brought from Peking in trucks and buses provided by commune or factory for the outing of their day off. At the Ming tombs the same crowds pass through the great red gate and queue up to go down into crypt.

They are good-natured, cheerful seeming, with little pushing or elbowing. Here is a son or a grandson — the Chinese look so much younger than their years, you can never tell — helping an elderly woman up the steep slope. She has the tiny feet, stumps almost, that resulted from the foot-binding custom of the upper class in the Old China.

Children, fresh and healthy looking, are all over the place. They suck on popicles sold by vendors, they munch on half-loaves of bread. Teen-agers march with a leader holding high a pole with the red flag of the People's Republic blowing out stiffly in the strong wind.

HERE in Hangchow the pagodas and pavilions of the Old China, or new structures similar in design, reflect the historic past. In the 12th Century the city was the center of a school of painting noted for the landscapes of the dramatic mountains encircling beautiful West Lake.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Toward industrial impotence

Sen. Edward Kennedy, who slipped a bill through the last Congress creating an agency called the Office of Technology Assessment, is now busy trying to drum up sentiment in both houses of Congress for funding it with some four million dollars to start in business.

The idea would be to bring ex-Congressman Emilio Daddario of Connecticut back to Washington to head the new agency and to provide him with a 12-member advisory council drawn from the scientific world to make studies of the probable effects of technological innovations.

All of this sounds very innocent, but two things are certain about it. One, with the country on its present Ralph Nader-cum-ecology kick, no new effort to solve the energy crisis or to keep U.S. military technology abreast of the Soviets would be permitted to see the light of day without five years of exhausting preliminary talk, and two, nobody in his right mind would be willing to commit private capital to industrial research and development that might be knocked down by politicians with anti-business axes to grind.

WHY CAN'T PEOPLE see that when government tries to apply political solutions to an economic problem, it simply stops the works? If the energy crisis is to become a political football, it means that we will get no new electrical generating capacity and no new sources of domestic or offshore oil supply before the Arab countries have assembled enough gold and dollars to buy up whole sections of American industry.

We will still be talking, and waiting for the Office of Technology Assessment to make one more study, at a time when the Soviets announce they have perfected a laser beam deathray and when some foreign scientists comes through with a method of getting cheap energy from hydrogen extracted from sea water.

You don't believe me that this sort of thing could possibly happen? Well, consider what have already happened in the development of the centrifuge process for getting enriched atomic fuel at a relatively cheap cost. It wasn't so long ago that some of our biggest power-equipment companies were immersed in centrifuge R. and D.

When it became apparent that it would be easy for a private investment group to bypass the necessity of building huge $2.5-billion Oak Ridge-type diffusion plants to make usable atomic fuel, the Atomic Energy Commission got scared. It was frightened lest somebody, using a small-scale centrifuge, might, so to speak, begin to make atomic bombs in his garage.

So, in an excess of caution, it called upon the big power machinery companies to turn in their atomic blueprints for impoundment in bonded warehouses. Since the AEC had the final say over any application of atomic science, important private atomic energy R. and D. stopped.

But nobody can really halt progress as long as physicists and chemists can read each others' theoretical papers. The Dutch and the Germans went on to perfect the cheaper centrifuge method of enriching atomic fuel. Now, after a waste of years, the AEC, realizing that Denmark or Israel or any other small nation can afford to make atomic bombs if it so desires, has told some of our bigger companies to go ahead with R. and D. that will make our expensive Oak Ridge processes obsolete.

THE KNITTING together is occurring in a variety of ways, large and small. Mass organizations attacked during the cultural revolution are being rebuilt. Trade unions, youth leagues, peasant organizations — these are an important second channel of communication to the countryside for Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai.

That is to say, they supplement the three-cornered organization in every commune and factory of the Army, the Cadres and the peasants and workers. It would be inaccurate to speak of autonomous authority in the provincial capitals. Yet authority is dispersed inasmuch as the revolutionary standing committees that administer each have a degree of independence in decision-making.

These administrators, as we have discovered, are intensely hard-working, alert, intelligent, determined to push on, while frankly stating how far they still have to go. An outstanding example is Lu Cheng-hao of the revolutionary standing committee of the big tea plantation near here.

He began life begging with his mother, since his father could not earn enough on the plantation to keep them alive. It is all part of the drama of a people who are to be reckoned with as never before in the future of mankind.

WE WILL BE in a position to finance the development of atomic energy without vast subsidies. Provided, of course, the ecologists can be satisfied that atomic waste can be safely contained and buried and that new atomic plants will be properly engineered to prevent disastrous leaks. Normally, it takes five years to satisfy an ecological sceptic.

The best thing that Congress could do would be to strangle the Kennedy Office of Technology Assessment by refusing to give it a nickel. Then the Senate should offer some far-reaching tax incentives to industry to push such things as coal gasification, atomic power plants and offshore oil drilling, with special attention to safety engineering.

With the carrot substituted for the political gabfest, we might begin to catch up with the Japanese, the West Germans, the Dutch and the Israelis, to say nothing of avoiding the Arab black-mail that is surely coming in the late Seventies if a political committee dominated by Teddy Kennedy and Emilio Daddario is running our industry.

Ohio colleges overwhelmed by med student applications

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Ohio's four medical schools have received an avalanche of 15,816 applications from students hoping to join freshman classes next term. Almost all will have to be rejected.

There are only 549 openings between the four schools—Case Western Reserve University, University of Cincinnati, Toledo's Medical College of Ohio and Ohio State University.

"The problem is not just local; it's also national," said admissions chief John L. Caughey Jr. at CWRU. "Estimates are that about 42,000 students are competing for 14,000 freshman openings across the country."

"Overwhelming" and "unbelievable" are the words medical school officials in Ohio use to describe the avalanche of applications this year.

They use the same words to describe the job of deciding which students will be rejected and which admitted. The schools seem agreed that most of the applicants this year are not just qualified for the schooling, but well qualified.

"It's a tough assignment," Caughey said. "When we get down to the final group of 500 or 600 kids we interview, we are talking about 500 or 600 very good kids," he said. "At that point, decision making perhaps could just as well be done by a lottery."

Cincinnati received 6,419 application for 120 openings, and CWRU had 5,225 students apply for its 138 freshman slots. About half of the CWRU freshman class and about 40 per cent of Cincinnati's are chosen from outside Ohio.

Ohio State University and Toledo's Medical College publicized their plans to stick to nearly all-Ohio freshmen classes this year in hopes it would cut down the applications. But OSU still netted 2,300 applications for 227 openings. Toledo had 1,872 students competing for a 64-member freshman class.

Representatives of the medical schools say the tight job market for scientists in research and teaching has driven many students away from other careers to the medical schools.

Other reasons listed include a more altruistic spirit among graduating collegians, more women applicants and the glamor of the medical profession displayed on television and in the movies.

Tip is credited with drug haul

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—A tip from a housewife was credited today with seizure by the Regional Enforcement Narcotics Unit (RENU) of 10,000 "hits" of LSD and mescaline, with a drug market value of $25,000.

RENU agents said the woman found the LSD and mescaline in a bag in a basement washing machine in a home into which she moved Sunday. She called police.

Officers said that since the house had been vacant for three months and the basement door was unlocked it had apparently been used as a "drop" for the drugs.

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Are boss' girl friend's messages part of job?

DEAR ABBY: If you feel that a private secretary should not sit in judgment of her boss' private affairs, then she should not be imposed upon to take insignificant, petty messages from his girl friend. After all, a secretary is employed to support the welfare of the business her boss represents.

No one should be asked to lie, and a secretary should feel remorse when she has to tell lies for her boss.

Your second offense was to inform that secretary that this is one of her secretarial duties. It is NOT!

OUT OF THE MIDDLE

DEAR OUT: And what if the boss owns his own business? A secretary is paid to convey messages to and from her boss, whatever they may be, and whether the message is from a business associate, his wife, or girl friend is none of her business. If she feels "remorse" when she tells a caller that her boss is "tied up" when he is not-or that he is "out" when he is busy, she has the privilege of finding a job that's more to her liking.

DEAR ABBY: I am having a fight with my girl friend. We wanted to go, dutch treat to a drive-in movie and I was a little low on money, so I suggested that she drive my car and I would ride in the trunk of the car.

She agreed, took the wheel, and drove to the drive-in. When we got there she refused to let me out. I pounded and pounded but she wouldn't let me out. I finally gave up and had to stay cramped up in the trunk while she watched the movie. After the movie, she drove herself home and then she let me out.

She said she wanted to teach me a lesson because what I wanted to do was not only dishonest it was stingy, too. I say the theater charge all they can get, which is way too much and anybody who can get in for free deserves to.

Was she right, or was I?

CRAMPED

DEAR CRAMPED: She was. Your chintzy stunt backfired. But watch that girl friend. She's a tough teacher!

DEAR ABBY: I am 12 years old. My parents are considered nice people. My father makes a good living and Mom has never had to work. She has a lot of friends and is always doing something for the church.

Now for my problem: My Mom shoplifts. I've known it for several months but she doesn't know that I know. I've seen her take stuff like cans of sardines, dress patterns, cosmetics—anything she can slip into her purse. We're not poor, Abby. Mom can buy just about anything she wants. What gets me is that she is always lecturing me on the importance of being honest and truthful.

What should I do? I keep thinking I should tell my father, but I just hate to. I'm so afraid Mom will get caught and sent to jail and the reputation of our whole family will be ruined. I'm the oldest. I can't take a chance on getting a letter from you at home so please put your answer in the paper but leave out my city. Thank You.

WORRIED FOR MOM

DEAR WORRIED: First, tell your Mom what you've told me. (She could be suffering from "kleptomania" an uncontrollable compulsion to steal). With treatment, kleptomanics can be cured; if she doesn't stop shoplifting after that, tell your father.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DESPERATE IN AURORA": WHICH Aurora? Aurora, Illinois? Colorado? Indiana? Missouri? Nebraska? Minnesota? Or Aurora, Ontario, Canada? My column is read in Auroras all over the map, and unless you put your address on the letter (NOT the envelope) I cannot reply.

First Presbyterian Church setting for wedding

Miss Carol Anne Wallace became the bride of Thomas Burch Hixson May 6 in First Presbyterian Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wallace, Rt. 4, and Mr. Hixson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Hixson, Rt. 1, Greenfield.

The Rev. Gerald Wheat performed the double-ring ceremony at 3:30 p.m. before an altar with vases of yellow, blue and pink daisies and babies' breath. The pews were marked with the same flowers accented with satin ribbon.

Miss Jean Marks and Ralph May, vocalists, and Robert Anderson organist, presented a half-hour of music prior to the wedding.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose an ivory satin Vogue design gown with jewel neckline and bell-shaped sleeves which fell to a point below the hand. Her matching train and the dress were accented with a rose design lace. The elbow-length veil fell from a lace and pearl headpiece made in a petal design. She carried a cascade of white daisies accented with yellow miniature roses, babies' breath and ivy.

Mrs. Denver Roberts, Miss Cindy Thompson and Miss Lin Myers wore identically designed dresses and smocks in alternating colors of blue and pink. Each carried a colonial bouquet of yellow, blue and pink daisies with babies' breath and rainbow streamers.

Little Miss Kerrie Beechler, niece of the groom, wore a dress designed identical to that of the maid of honor. The dress was pink with a white smock and she carried a basket of daisy petals.

Steve Lewis served as best man. Seating the wedding guests were Robert Judkins, John Cokouougher and Robert Bustley. Doug Beechler, nephew of the groom, and Mark Bryant, cousin of the bride, were ringbearers.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences tonight is putting on a long-overdue separate Emmy awards show that honors what the academy considers the best of this season's television news and documentary efforts.

The news awards ceremonies, formerly buried in Emmy shows that primarily concerned entertainment, will be broadcast from New York at 9:30 p.m. EDT on the CBS television network.

Alas, the nature of TV is such that the shows will be pitted against rerun of made-for-TV movies on NBC and ABC at 10 p.m.

Gold prices high, but volume low

LONDON (AP) — The latest gold-dollar rush is generating lots of talk and plenty of change in prices but it's a minirush as far as the volume of business is concerned.

Dealers say the trading in the past week on Europe's gold and money markets has been light to moderate, and far below the huge levels reached during the February monetary crisis that resulted in the last dollar devaluation.

The dollar dropped to record lows Monday in Paris, Frankfurt, Zurich and Oslo Monday, while the price of gold closed at an all-time high of $112 an ounce — $6.50 above Friday's closing — in Zurich and London, the world's two biggest bullion markets.

Dealers said one factor in the price shifts was the report in a number of European newspapers that the Watergate scandals might force President Nixon to resign.

The dealers added that the markets were jittery, responding to the wildest rumors with volatile price swings. They said that even without Watergate, confidence in the dollar is at a low ebb because of concern over the continuing deficit in the U.S. balance of payments and the renewed inflation in the United States.

The lack of confidence in the U.S. economy appeared to be affecting the stock markets also. Brokers reported widespread selling of U.S. securities by Europeans and demand for gold mining stocks.

Ironically, NBC's competing effort against the Emmy news show at that hour will be a one-hour news special on the Watergate case.

More than 60 programs, spot news reports and individuals have been nominated for Emmy this year. NBC has the most nominations—28. It's followed by CBS with 20, ABC with 11 and the Public Broadcasting Service with three.

The nominees are in seven basic categories, ranging from "Outstanding Achievement Within Regularly Scheduled News Programs" to "Special Classification of Outstanding Program and Individual Achievement."

The latter, according to the academy, provides an "award for unique program and individual achievements, which does not fall into a specific category, or is not otherwise recognized."

Gotcha. The scheduled presenters on tonight's show include presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger; Coretta Scott King, the widow of Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.; and Frank Stanton, who recently retired as vice chairman of CBS and now is president of the American Red Cross.

The network anchor—John Chancellor of NBC, Walter Cronkite of CBS and Howard K. Smith and Harry Reasoner of ABC—also will be on hand, as will Robert MacNeil, senior correspondent for the National Public Affairs Center for Television.

On Jan. 1, 1973, Ohio had 1,428 miles of Interstate highways open to traffic, including 241 miles of the Ohio Turnpike. In addition, 48 miles were under construction, 84 miles in detail-design stages and 10 miles in the pre-hearing phase.

Ohio Perspective

Bartunek seeks statewide image

By ROBERT L. SHAFFER

Associated Press Writer
CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Joseph W. Bartunek, once one of the best-known political leaders in Ohio, realizes he now has a big problem in returning to politics—recognition.

If he is to win the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate next spring, he has to reach downstate voters.

"My recognition level outside Cleveland is pretty low," Bartunek agreed. "I hope to combat that by a grassroots campaign . . . meeting with people, as many as possible, throughout the state."

And since the 49-year-old Cleveland attorney announced his plans recently, he said, he has heard from "people I've worked with in most areas of the state . . . and the reaction has been very favorable."

Howard Metzenbaum, Cleveland attorney and businessman faced the recognition problem in his unsuccessful run for the Senate in 1970. He spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in an advertising campaign to make his name well known around Ohio.

Bartunek said he will attack the problem by "going into each of the 88 counties—meeting with people and leaders throughout the state."

Bartunek has had a varied and colorful political career. He said he feels "a terrible need to get into politics . . . on the legislative level, which I know best."

It was in the Ohio Senate where he had his first political successes. Elected to that body at the age of 24, Bartunek became Democratic minority leader in three years.

He served in the Senate until 1964 except for a two-year break in 1958-1959, when he held the powerful post of

Marshal Konev dead

MOSCOW (AP) — Marshal Ivan S. Konev, 75, a celebrated World War II commander who later became involved in Kremlin intrigues, died Monday. He claimed that he, not Marshal Georgi Zhukov, was the real hero of Berlin because his tanks opened a breach in Berlin's southern defenses in 1945.

Senate clerk. It was during that period that he became involved in the incident which came to be known as "the night the lights went out."

To block Senate action on a bill, Bartunek had the lights in the Senate chamber turned out, creating pandemonium.

He left the Senate in 1964 to run for Cuyahoga County probate judge, won the election but gave up the $26,000-a-year judicial post in 1970 to return to politics—this time as unpaid chairman of the Democratic party's Cuyahoga County central and executive committees.

Rose Avenue's sixth graders to attend Eastside next year

The Washington C. H. Board of Education decided Monday night to transfer the sixth grade from Rose Avenue Elementary next fall. Sixth graders from the Rose Avenue district will be bussed to Eastside school in a move to eliminate the need for an additional sixth grade teacher.

Edwin M. Nestor, superintendent of schools, said that he would like to see what can be done to make the tennis courts at Gardner Park a viable facility for community recreation. Although it was suggested that the courts might be converted for basketball, the consensus seemed to be that renovation of the tennis facility would be more appreciated by local residents. Estimates for the necessary repairs will be considered at the next meeting of the board.

OCSEA members to hear Belknap

Jack Belknap, a representative of the Ohio Public Employees Retirement System, will be a guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Fayette County chapter of the Ohio Civil Service Employees Association Thursday.

All public employees in Fayette County and their wives are invited to attend the meeting, Johnson said.

A REPORT on the Gardner Park lighting project disclosed that most of the materials have been received, and as soon as Dayton Power and Light Co. provides the cross beams, the lights can be installed.

In other action, the board approved the list of seniors eligible for graduation from Washington Senior High School, and the board resolved to send two of the less experienced custodians to a one-day training school June 18 at Grove City High School.

Mental health changes noted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Community-based mental health facilities have decreased Ohio's mental hospital population by 21 per cent since 1970, according to Gov. John Gilligan.

"We've learned that it's possible—and often preferable—to provide mental health services to Ohioans near their own homes, without making it necessary for them to break family ties and enter a state institution," Gilligan said Monday.

Gilligan said community programs and resultant smaller hospital populations have been an important part of his "humanization program."

Annexations could affect tax sharing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Secretary of State Ted Brown has asked 27 cities to report recent annexations to his office by June 1 so they will not lose any federal revenue sharing funds.

Brown was designated the clearing officer for such information by Gov. John Gilligan less than a month ago.

Federal officials on Feb. 1 asked Gilligan to name a state official as clearing officer, but the governor did not designate Brown until April 27. Brown said he did not know it until April 30.

Brown said he has written federal authorities informing them of his appointment at such short notice and asked them what steps can be taken to assure that no one loses any funds.

Brown said he didn't object to being declared the official responsible since he has a breakdown of Ohio census figures in his office.

But, he added, that the cities which have annexed new areas could lose funds if they don't reply to his office so he can certify population increases to Washington.

Several aides in Brown's office felt that Gilligan, a Democrat, may have delayed certification of Brown, a Republican, in order to embarrass him if he fails to meet the deadline.

Brown, however, said he sees no problem in meeting the June 1 deadline if the cities report their new population figures.

Eagleton has no evidence data stolen

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton says he has no evidence that the White House or any other government agency had his medical records prior to last year's Democratic National Convention.

Eagleton was referring to newspaper reports which said records of his medical history were in the possession of John D. Ehrlichman, former presidential aide. The reports said Ehrlichman had the Missouri Democrat's medical files before word of his shock treatments was leaked in the 1972 election campaign.

Eagleton resigned as Sen. George S. McGovern's vice presidential running mate Aug. 31, 1972, after disclosing he underwent electric shock treatments for depression and nervous exhaustion.

"I have no evidence that the White House or any other government agency had my medical records. I have been told by the FBI that they did not have the file," Eagleton said.

Asked if he felt betrayed by reports of political espionage against Democratic candidates seeking the party's presidential nomination last summer, he said: "I don't feel betrayed. I feel deeply, deeply saddened."

He made his comments during a joint news conference here with former Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Mark Hodges trial opens in Findlay

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) — A three-judge panel in Hancock County Common Pleas Court began hearing testimony Monday in the trial of Mark Hodges, who has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon and assault to commit murder.

The charges stem from an alleged attack on Dawn Menery, 23, of Findlay last December.

The plaintiff took the stand and said Hodges stopped her car while she was out delivering Christmas gifts to children in connection with her social work.

Miss Menery said that Hodges posed as a policeman, frisked her, then threatened to kill her if she would not let him tie her up.

Before the testimony began Hancock County Common Pleas Court Judge Joe Moorehead heard privately from a psychiatrist who said Hodges was sane and able to stand trial.

The defendant has been undergoing tests at Lima State Hospital.

The judges hearing the trial are Moorehead, Wood County Common Pleas Court Judge Kenneth Adams and retired Judge Russell Kear of Wyandot County.

Hodges was acquitted in 1967 of the slaying of Karen Kern of Sylvania. She was the 20-year-old niece of Ohio AFL-SCIO President Frank King.

LBJ cattle auctioned

STONEWALL, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson has thrown what may have been one of the last of the big LBJ Ranch parties to sell off her husband's prize herd of Hereford cattle.

A total of 213 cattle were sold during the 4½-hour auction on Monday, bringing in $140,560. The highest price paid for a single head was $2,650 for a bull.

"This day is a mixture of sadness with, I hope, a touch of festivity," Mrs. Johnson told the approximately 700 would-be cattle buyers and spectators gathered under a bright red-and-yellow canvas tent. A barbecue picnic lunch was served in a second tent and two beer stands were set up under mesquite trees.

"Lyndon started buying cattle soon after we first moved here 20 years ago ... This was Lyndon's love. But the time has come to sell," she said.

Sales workers said cattle buyers from 14 states, Puerto Rico and Mexico attended the sale of 33 Hereford bulls and 129 cows, 52 of them with calves.

The first successful Navy airship, the F1, was made in Akron following World War I.

MONEY DOES MATTER . . .

By A. R. BRYANT

GOT ALL YOUR EGGS IN ONE BASKET?

There is only one time when you or your family should think about investing, and that is after you have taken care of certain essential musts.

Your basic spending pattern should be producing a regular surplus of income over expense.

You should have an adequate reserve fund, perhaps extra savings in an account, enough insurance to protect your family, and provision should have been made for housing in keeping with your family's needs.

Then, and only then, should you consider an investing program — of which there are many types, meeting different objectives.

Your needs and desires in the investment areas of growth, income, safety, and protection against inflation should all be carefully analyzed and studied.

And, include diversification. Never put all your eggs in one basket!

Giants clip Houston's NL West lead

★★★ Young reliever saves Frisco's 9-4 victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When the San Francisco Giants bring in reliever Randy Moffitt, it's game, set, match.

Moffitt, the second most successful athlete in his family...his sister is tennis star Billie Jean King...earned his eighth save of the baseball season Monday night, preserving San Francisco's 9-4 victory over Houston.

The young reliever allowed just two hits in 3 1-3 innings work, nailing down the nationally televised victory.

The victory moved the Giants within five percentage points of first-place Houston in the National League West.

Elsewhere Monday night, Pittsburgh nipped Philadelphia 5-4 in the only other National League game played. Chicago at Montreal and St. Louis at New York were rained out.

In the only American League games scheduled, Boston defeated Baltimore 4-1, Cleveland battered the New York Yankees 10-5 and Oakland blanked Kansas City 5-0.

Pittsburgh wiped out a four-run deficit against Steve Carlton with homers by Willie Stargell and Manny Sanguillen and beat the Phillies on Richie Zisk's pinch single in the ninth. It was a distinctly un-Carlton performance for the 1972 27-game winner.

Carlton is 4-6 and has failed to hold leads in three of his last four starts.

Boston ended a four - game losing streak with Luis Tiant throttling Baltimore on four hits. Luis Aparicio drove in two runs with a two-out, bases-loaded single in the seventh inning and Carl Yastrzemski doubled home two more in the ninth.

New York roughed up Gaylord Perry for four runs on five hits in the second inning, but Cleveland's ace survived the rally and the Indians came from behind and beat the Yankees.

Buddy Bell contributed four singles and George Hendrick had two singles and a two-run homer for the Indians.

★★★ Reds face 'must' game

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— It's a little early to be calling a series "crucial," but that's the term that might be applied to a two-game set the Cincinnati Reds will open here tonight against the Houston Astros.

The situation is this:

The San Francisco Giants clobbered Houston Monday night and now trail the frontrunning Astros by five percentage points in the National League's Western Division. The Reds are just a game and a half behind both of them.

With an ailing pitching staff Manager Sparky Anderson of the Reds planned to open with a reliever—Clay Carroll. Carroll has been ineffective as a reliever this season, but did well in his first start last week. His pitching foe is expected to be Houston's Dave Roberts.

After that, Anderson will come up with his "ace" Jack Billingham, 7-1. Billingham is expected to face Don Wilson in the Wednesday night game.

Gay Singer victor at Lebanon Raceway

LEBANON, Ohio (AP)—Gay Singer won his third victory in four starts here Monday night in the featured conditional pace for three-year-olds and up at the Lebanon Raceway's harness race meeting.

Gay Singer, owned by Dennis L. Hodson of Columbus and driven by Charles Mellen, covered the mile in 2:07 4-5 and won by a length over Logan Brooks. Gay Singer paid $3.20, $2.60 and $2.20, while Logan Brooks paid $5.20 and $3.00.

The Coca Cola Jets and Washington Savings Bank's Charge-A-Checks opened the 1973 Little League Majors summer baseball season with wins Monday night at Wilson Field.

The Jets downed Downtown Drug 10-2 in the opener and the Charge-A-Checks nipped the Rotary Wheels 5-4 in the nightcap.

There were no minor league games at Armbrust Field Monday due to wet field conditions. Action is scheduled to open in the minor leagues tonight, according to Lee Lynch, president of the Washington C. H. Little League Association.

The Charge-A-Checks got a double from Brickets and a home run from Storer to highlight a six-hit attack. Leisure and Brickets handled the mound chores for the winners while Dodds and Jones hurled for the Rotary Wheels.

Balaksis cracked two singles in three appearances to lead the Wheels' seven-hit offensive effort.

Time heals, Bengal trainer says

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— After years of study, Trainer Marv Pollins of the Cincinnati Bengals says the primary treatment for ailing football players is "tincture of time."

"We can speed up the time," said the 34-year-old trainer, "but mostly the treatment consists of self-healing, preventing further injury and rebuilding strength."

Pollins, 1960 graduate of Miami University, has degrees in biological sciences, and a master degree in education.

"Some trainers don't like players hanging around unless they're hurt," said the thin, brown-eyed trainer.

"I like the training room to be a place they can relax—to blow off steam, to feel at home."

Miami, long known as the "Cradle of Coaches," might also be called the "Cradle of Trainers," Pollins said.

He started out to be a student manager and climbed under the wing of trainer emeritus Jay Colville, a widely-known innovator in training methods for 40 years.

Colville, said Pollins, helped develop use of rubber padding, sheet metal and tape for injuries. He also studied football helmets.

Coach Paul Brown went to Colville to find a trainer when he established the Cincinnati Bengals in 1968. Pollins worked for Ara Parseghian at Northwestern University at the time.

Brown and Pollins agree on many points in training, said Pollins. They don't use the needle to inject pain killers, no pills and no special diets.

"A football player is a valuable piece of property," said Pollins. "If he is hurt you put in somebody else. A hurt player

NATIONAL CHAIRMAN — Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench, who recovered from major lung surgery to return to baseball stardom, has been named as national honorary chairman of the 1973 Christmas Seal campaign against lung disease.

Ol' Diz treats viewers with his homespun wit

NEW YORK (AP) — While the San Francisco Giants and Houston Astros went about the business of baseball, the television viewers got a taste of non-stop play-by-play, expertise, reminiscing and cornpone humor.

And the fans at home and the 24,186 at the game were treated, if that's the proper word, to an off-key, a cappella, gravelly, drawling version of The Wabash Cannonball.

It wasn't exactly Humble Howard, Dandy Don and Fearless Frank—but then, it wasn't a gridiron they were overlooking.

It was the diamond in the cavernous Houston Astrodome and it was the newest entry in show business-sports, Curt, Tony and ol' Diz.

Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubek will be there every Monday night for NBC's

Monday night Game of the Week. The new addition is a weekly celebrity, in this case...YAHOO!...Dizzy Dean.

In weeks to come, it could range from baseball greats like Joe DiMaggio and Casey Stengel to other sports stars like basketball's Dave DeBusschere of the New York Knicks and tennis hustler Bobby Riggs...and ultimately to diverse personalities such as Dinah Shore, Woody Allen, Pearl Bailey, perhaps Tiny Tim, and others.

But for the premiere of the experiment—one which had been lambasted by hard-core baseball fans long before it ever got on the air—NBC went for the combination man, baseball star and personality in Dean, the premiere pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals' "Gashouse Gang" of the 1930s.

The trio became a quartet in the sixth inning as Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn joined the act. At times, the airwaves seemed to be almost cluttered with commentary, occasionally related to what was happening on the AstroTurf, more often not.

It was going into the bottom of the third inning that Dean swung into The Wabash Cannonball. He did one verse, greeted with mild applause by the fans, then unexpectedly broke into a reprise.

Houston's Roger Metzger, stepping into the batter's box, glanced around and stepped out again as the second verse twanged around the ballpark. Home plate umpire John McSherry turned to look up at the broadcasting booth, then flung out his arms as if to say, "Enough, already."

"I'm delighted with the guest celebrity program," Kuhn had said before the game. "It automatically draws a big audience of people who won't normally watch baseball." Whether that's true won't be known for a while—until the ratings come in and a trend can be discerned.

Monkey business at Indy Speedway quickly checked

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—It isn't easy to put one over on Frank DelRoy, and there's at least one team at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway that must wish it hadn't tried.

DelRoy is the longtime technical supervisor for the U.S. Auto Club and in that capacity has final say over certification of cars for the Indianapolis 500-mile race.

During the final weekend of qualifications at the Speedway, an apparent bit of chicanery came to light as the Norris Industries team got caught with its number changed.

Sam Posey, who finished fifth in the 1972 Indy 500, had his car bumped from the starting lineup for this year's race only hours after DelRoy announced the USAC technical committee caught Posey's crew in an indiscretion.

It seems that Posey had qualified the No. 34 Eagle-Offenhauser the first weekend at such a slow speed that he was sure it would not stay in the field for the May 28 race. So he announced to the world the team had bought a new Eagle-Offy and was putting the number 31 on it.

Posey said it would be available to qualify if his first car was bumped.

DelRoy said Monday, "The car was actually a fraud. They cleaned it up and removed all identification and it got past the first inspection crew...but it didn't get by me."

What DelRoy meant is that the crew had tried to change No. 34 to No. 31. No car can legally qualify twice for the same Indy race.

DelRoy said, "Even though these cars are all similar, there's always a little difference and I quite often make mental note of that difference. We finally got them to admit what they did. But I was told the crew was under direct orders from Fred Carrillo."

Carrillo is the owner of the two Norris Industries entries at the Speedway — No. 34 and No. 35. The second car made the lineup late Sunday with veteran Jim McElreath a last-minute choice as driver.

Carrillo faces a possible fine up to $100 and suspension of his USAC license for up to one year. Posey and chief mechanic Jack McCormick are not expected to be penalized.

There had been rumors that Posey, from San Juan Capistrano, Calif., might replace McElreath as driver for the No. 35 Eagle-Offy for the race. But Carrillo said Monday that McElreath will be at the wheel for his 10th Memorial Day race.

The attempted hijinks and discovery underscored the thoroughness of the USAC inspectors.

When the cars are first brought into the garage area at the Speedway, they are checked for serial numbers, weighed and measured. They are then torn down and completely inspected by a USAC crew of 12 or 13 persons.

Just for starters, the fuel tank cannot hold more than 75 gallons, there can be no leaks of any kind, and the cars must weigh at least 1,500 pounds.

The cars cannot be more than 15 feet long, nor more than 32 inches high from the bottom of the body to the top of the air foil wings. The wings cannot extend back more than 42 inches from the center of the rear wheel, and the overall width of the car cannot exceed 80 inches.

When the cars reach the track, they must have prior inspection papers from one of USAC's 101 inspection stations around the country stating that the component parts have all been checked and okayed.

After 160-odd items have been approved, the car is given a temporary permit which allows it to practice. A more thorough final inspection is given before qualifications and the cars are checked again after they get in line to qualify.

DelRoy said, "We do find alterations, but if they can adjust it or make it

56-game schedule set for BR teams

A 56-game schedule and plans for the 1973 summer season have been completed by the Fayette County Babe Ruth League, according to John Skinner, Babe Ruth League commissioner.

Skinner said the first official event of the season will be a preview game at 2 p.m. Sunday, June 3 at Rossmann Field in which all eight teams will play two innings. The game will provide baseball fans an excellent opportunity to see all teams in action at one time.

The league schedule is set for Monday through Thursday, June 4 to July 19. Tentative plans have also been made for an invitational all-star tournament to be held the last weekend in July (27-29) and a minor league tournament to be announced at a later date.

Skinner said there are plans to award a championship trophy as well as most valuable player, hitting and pitching trophies at the first annual league picnic Sunday, July 22. The Babe Ruth all-star team will be announced at the picnic, he said.

After a qualifying run, the car's tires and wheels are stamped, serialized and impounded until raceday to insure that the drivers start the race with the same tires they qualified on. The engine is also numbered, although, if a car blows an engine before the race, it can be replaced with what DelRoy called "an identical engine that is inspected."

Everything on the car is checked once more before the race and must be okayed by the USAC committee. During the race there is a technical observer in each pit.

PLATING FACILITY — Construction of plating facilities is now in progress at Mac Tools, Inc., in Washington C. H. One of the most costly items in the installation of the plating department is the installation of equipment to be used for treating the waste from the plating operation.

SHIPPING DEPARTMENT — More than 4,000 items manufactured by Mac Tools, Inc., are kept in stock in the Washington C. H. plant. The shipping department was moved here last week from Sabina, meaning bins of all 4,000 items had to be placed for easy access.

Mac Tools see major expansion in WCH

BY LARRY JOSEPH
Record-Herald City Editor

Progress is continuing at the Washington C. H. plant of Mac Tools, Inc., and projections for the next five years indicate an almost doubling of the work force.

The firm, which purchased the former National Cash Register Co. plant here a year ago, is expanding rapidly and plans to employ 750 persons by 1977; 500 in Washington C. H., and 250 in Sabina.

The office staff moved into the Washington C. H. plant last week, and the shipping department and finished goods section have been moved here from Sabina and are to be operational this week.

The move will expand the work force at the Washington C. H. plant from a present 268 to about 325. An additional 100 employees will remain in Sabina.

WHEN MAC TOOLS announced the purchase of the facility here a year ago, plans called for moving the entire Sabina operation to Washington C. H. and using only half of the space here. An expanding market has caused a change, according to Paul Elrod, president of the corporation.

"We now plan to use all of the Washington C. H. plant," Elrod said.

Pentagon officials uncertain volunteer setup will work

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Pentagon officials are becoming increasingly uncertain that the United States can maintain adequate armed forces on an all-volunteer basis.

The Pentagon's official position is that the all-volunteer concept can and will succeed. That has been its line since the outset of the Nixon administration, long before the government stopped drafting young men into the Army last December.

But Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the Army chief of staff, told a reporter recently he is not yet prepared to predict the outcome. Abrams indicated he expects to know by next winter, after about a year of experience without the presence of the draft to spur enlistments.

Another general said privately, "The feeling is growing that it is doubtful we can make it."

In a study for Congress, the General Accounting Office predicted early this month that the armed services could fall as many as 83,000 short of their goal of the 354,000 new enlistments next year unless mental standards are lowered.

But the Army and the other services resist the idea of accepting more men who have not graduated from high school and who score among the lowest in qualification tests.

Ten months ago, the Pentagon put into effect a new $1,500 bonus to lure young men into enlisting for ground-combat jobs in the Army and the Marine Corps, an area of considerable difficulty in raising enough manpower. But late last month, the Pentagon

"Our original plan was to use approximately one-half of the space in Washington C. H., and none of the space in Sabina," he said. The Sabina plant will be retained for the firm's forging operations.

One of the reasons for maintaining the forging operation in Sabina is the suitability of the plant. Elrod said heavy bases are needed under the machinery, plus 24-foot ceilings. The two large buildings in Washington C. H. are not adequate for this type operation.

The two plant sites provide a total of approximately 385,000 square feet of floor space. "We plan to use it all," Elrod commented.

THE COMPANY markets approximately 8,000 hand tool items for mechanics, of which about 4,000 are manufactured either in Washington C. H. or Sabina. The other half of the product line is manufactured by other companies under the Mac Tools brand name, and are handled through associate companies in Talmadge and Medina.

"The demand for our product has grown very rapidly in the last few years," Elrod said. An aggressive sales organization of 822 franchisees in all 50 states and Canada has created the demand, Elrod said.

The change from the standard fractional system to the metric system of measure is also creating a double demand for the firm's products.

Mac Tools has been manufacturing tools in the metric measure for about 10 years, mainly for use on imported vehicles. Now the demand is about 50-50 with the fractional system. Starting next year, at least one auto manufacturer will begin using the metric system on American made products.

ADAPTING the Washington C. H. plant to the needs of Mac Tools has been under way since the plant was acquired. Much of the electrical system has been changed, and the offices have been renovated. Manufacturing began in Washington C. H. in August while the alterations continued. Elrod said some delays were experienced in obtaining major items of equipment, while striving to maintain customer service.

The firm is now in a five-year growth period with projections to 1977. By that time it is expected that all the space will be used in both plants.

Elrod expressed his appreciation to the Chamber of Commerce, businessmen and the Washington C.H. community for its assistance in establishing the plant in Washington C. H.

U. S. trade problems spotlighted this week

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — This is World Trade Week, and as the United States observes it with speeches and dedications and the usual paraphernalia of official ceremony, it cannot forget that trade is also a deadly financial game.

Events of the past few weeks underscore the stakes: The dollar was again hit by a selling wave, speculators fled currencies for gold, the stock market slumped, and world commodity markets were said to be nervous.

All three troubles are related to trade, especially U.S. trade. A financially sound nation is generally thought to be a successful trader. The unsuccessful trader is financially suspect because he runs up deficits, or IOUs.

And so, when the United States, biggest trader of all, the biggest financial force in the world, fails to trade effectively or to keep its economy under control or otherwise convince the world of its strength, fear spreads.

The fact is that while the United States is by far the biggest trader, it has become, in some respects, a weaker trader than before.

It ran up its first trade deficit of the century last year, with imports exceeding exports by $2.7 billion. In the first quarter of 1973 it did manage to raise exports by $2.1 billion to $15.34 billion. But imports rose to $16.26 billion.

And for those who long have viewed U.S. industrial leadership as unassailable, consider this: The first-quarter rise in exports resulted mainly from agricultural shipments; the rise in imports mainly from industrial purchases.

A fact sheet produced for World Trade Week shows the U.S. automotive industry is dependent upon imports from 32 countries, that the telephones we use required 48 materials from 18 nations, that 75 per cent of newsprint is imported.

There are unique reasons for the problem. The United States assumed an enormous role in the security of much of the nonCommunist world in the past 30 years. Not only in Vietnam and Korea, but in Europe, too.

As a result, U.S. expenditures abroad have for almost two decades exceeded the input. The concern over this was lessened somewhat by the working thesis, however naive, that these expenditures were temporary.

The mood of the United States is that of the offended giant, discriminated against by nations that once were weak but which now, either from economic merger such as in Europe, or innovation and self-denial, as in Japan, have themselves become giants.

Nations are loath to forego privileges, and enthusiastic about claiming them.

That, say free trade advocates, is economic warfare. And judging from history, it is easier to wage war than to cooperate. The spirit of World Trade Week is to effect an historic change. No less a goal.

Opening lead - queen of clubs.

When Sylvia first joined the club, she barely knew a spade from a hole in the ground. She thought a coup was something birds did, a pass something the boys made at girls, and a double something you saw in the mirror.

But this didn't stop her from playing in the expert game, where of course she was outclassed. Her unfamiliarity with the niceties of the game was at times shocking and naturally produced countless disasters, but at the same time this very ignorance occasionally resulted in an outstanding triumph that would be discussed by the membership at large for weeks on end.

Take this deal which occurred shortly after Sylvia learned to finesse. This newly found device was a fascinating revelation to her, and she relished each and every opportunity to use it with an unholly zest that scared her partners half to death.

West led a club. Sylvia won in dummy with the ace, returned a trump, and finessed the jack! When this extraordinary gambit succeeded, Sylvia's expression of joy would have melted the heart of the Sphinx. She later lost a heart, a diamond and a club, but made four spades.

East-West felt deeply aggrieved by the unaccustomed finesse, without which Sylvia inevitably would have gone down one. Yet, strangely enough, later analysis proved that Sylvia's play was correct and the only way to assure the contract.

Had the finesse lost to the singleton or doubleton queen, the contract would still have been firmly under control. The defense could cash a club and shift to a diamond, but declarer would win, cash a high trump, and play a heart to the queen and ace. South would then be able to discard a diamond on the king of hearts, using the three of spades as a sure-fire entry to dummy.

On Preventing a Hangover

Sundays are considered the day of rest. In our house most of the day seems to revolve around getting rid of a hangover, for me and my husband.

Some of the people we drink with don't seem to be bothered. Is there any special way to prevent a hangover?

We've tried olive oil to coat our stomachs, but it doesn't help.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D., Mich.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. D.:

The hangover of the chronic alcoholic needs the special intensive help of the psychiatrist, the physician, and probably more important, the direction of the excellent programs of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Such drinkers drink to oblivion. Their purpose is to saturate themselves so completely that reality fades and their fantasy world takes over.

They handle their hangover by starting another bout of drinking.

Your case, however, is the hangover

of the social drinker. The answer lies in mature and sensible moderation.

Most social drinkers have learned that excess drinking only cheats them of the fun of the evening and leaves them in the state you describe.

Surely, by now you and your husband should know your own personal limits of alcohol intake. You cannot compete with the tolerance of others.

There are no drugs that can be taken before, during or after drinking that will spare you the penalty of a severe hangover.

I must introduce an additional thought in the hope it will induce in you more sensible patterns of social drinking.

How many lives besides your own did you endanger the last time you drove home from one of those drinking bouts?

Are gold injections still used for arthritis?

Mr. J. L., Ala.

Dear Mrs. L.:
Injections of gold salts have been used for many years for very specific types of arthritis.

Some doctors are highly enthusiastic about this type of treatment. Others are more reserved about their benefits.

With the advent of cortisone and ACTH, the use of gold salts by injection have been diminished.

Arthritis is a vast complex with many subdivisions. Before any form of treatment is undertaken the exact nature of the arthritis is established.

Often it is necessary to vary the type of treatment, depending on how each person responds to the carefully chosen drugs.

Physical therapy, exercise, heat in various forms, and ultrasonic vibrations, along with massage and passive exercises, are valuable adjuncts to gold and other forms of treatment.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH — Be selfish and reap the benefits of employing the handicapped. They have a fine record of dependability.

Grand jury to consider two charges

A Fayette County grand jury will convene Wednesday to consider the evidence in two area cases. County Prosecutor Otis R. Hess Jr. will seek indictments against John Allen Brown and Orvall McCallister.

Brown faces a murder charge in connection with the shooting death of Demeatris Louise Winfield on Friday, April 13. Brown was one of six persons present at the scene of the slaying at 721 Gregg St. when the police arrived.

McCallister was arrested April 27 by the Madison County Sheriff's Department and charged with cutting with intent to wound following a quarrel the previous night at his home in Bloomingburg. McCallister's son, Jim, was treated for stab wounds allegedly inflicted by his father with a butcher knife.

Kiwanis Club elects leaders

The Kiwanis Club met Monday evening at the Lafayette Inn, and election of officers and financial reports were the principal business.

Elected to three-year terms on the board of directors were Richard Maddux, Tom Yates and Larry Lloyd. Moving into officer positions for the coming year are George Gibbs, president; Guy Foster, president-elect, and Duane French, vice president.

Police and sheriff's departments investigated three minor thefts Monday.

A new tire and rim were removed from the trunk of a car owned by Mary L. Christman, 1236 High St., sometime during the past 10 days, police report. Officers said the thief apparently used a key to enter the locked trunk. Loss was set at $50.

Employees of the J. J. Blazer Construction Co., at the U.S. 35 bypass construction site, reported the theft of three gas burners used as warning devices. The theft occurred Sunday night at the U.S. 62 - CCC Highway interchange. The burners were valued at $45.

Dave Smith, of 933 Columbus Ave., reported his son's bicycle was stolen from the bike rack at Eastside School sometime Monday afternoon. The bicycle was valued at $20.

TOPS chapter makes awards

Mrs. Frank Black received a charm for staying within her KOPS status for a year when TOPS Chapter 669 met Monday evening in Eastside School. Mrs. Beryl Smith conducted the meeting for 31 members attending. Mrs. Virgil Miller was a guest.

Mrs. William Barnett and Kathy Jenkins, teen princess, were the week's best losers. Miss Betty McNeil was named best officer.

Members were reminded to report at the contest table each week, and gifts are to be brought for the contest at next week's meeting which will be held on Tuesday because of Memorial Day.

A group discussion was concerned with why members gain or lose weight.

Woman hurt in accident on Creek Rd.

Sheriff's deputies are still investigating an early morning single-car crash on Creek Road which sent a Fayette County woman to Memorial Hospital.

Officers said Judith A. Adams, Rt. 2, was undergoing treatment for lacerations of her mouth and a jaw injury. They were not immediately able to talk to Mrs. Adams who was under medication.

The accident occurred at 2:30 a.m. about three miles south of Washington C. H. According to investigating officers the Adams car ran off the east side of the road, hit a mail box then traveled another 204 feet, colliding with a utility pole and a fence.

The car was extensively damaged.

A 1970 MODEL car driven by Carol A. Martindale, 19, Rt. 4, was heavily damaged when it ran off Ohio 41 and overturned at 6:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The car was northbound on Ohio 41, in Jeffersonville, when it ran off the east side of the road. Officers said the car returned to the roadway then again ran off the east side, overturning on its top in a field.

Eight rods of fence owned by Emmett Bailey, Wilmington, was torn down. Miss Martindale was uninjured.

A car driven by Richard A. Young, 21, Laporte, Ind., ran off Ohio 41, just north of Bloomingburg - New Holland Road, Monday afternoon and collided with a utility pole.

Young told officers he was southbound and swerved to the right to avoid a car pulling from the Miami Trace High School lot.

There was moderate damage to the front of the 1968 model car.

Police reported cars driven by William D. Pierce, 19, Rt. 1, and Joseph A. Boylan, of 1105 Golfview Dr., were involved in a collision on the Washington Square lot.

Moderate damage was listed in the 6:50 p.m. mishap.

Fires destroy car and shed

A car and a shed were destroyed in two fires reported in the county Monday.

Firemen were called to a car blaze on U.S. 22, about three miles east of the city at 2:54 p.m. Monday. Firemen said the car, driven by Rosie Arnold, Springfield, was destroyed. The 1960 model car was filled with paint cans and oil cans, but firemen said they could not determine the cause of the blaze.

A small storage shed and its contents at the Beverly Burnett residence, Prairie Rd., was destroyed by fire Monday night. Bloomingburg firemen listed no cause for the blaze.

Brezhnev claims world peace near

BONN, Germany (AP) — Asserting that the world is closer to durable peace than ever before, Leonid Brezhnev flies back to Moscow today to begin preparing for his visit with President Nixon next month.

The departure of the Soviet Communist party chief on the first anniversary of Nixon's trip to Moscow ended the first visit to West Germany by a top Soviet leader. During his five days in Bonn, he and Chancellor Willy Brandt laid the basis for an expansion of trade, technical and scientific cooperation and cultural exchanges between their two countries.

Brezhnev said in a television address Monday night that improved U.S.-Soviet relations and other steps have brought peace closer. Vowing to bring the Soviet Union out of the Cold War and into ever closer cooperation with the West, the 66-year-old party chief said:

"The prospects for humanity are becoming increasingly more hopeful. The war in Vietnam is over. Soviet-American relations continue to develop favorably.

"By and large, one can say that our planet today has come closer than ever before to durable peace."

The highlight of Brezhnev's visit was his signing Saturday with Brandt of a 10-year economic cooperation pact providing a framework for West German investment to help boost the lagging Soviet economy.

In a joint declaration Monday, Brezhnev and Brandt gave their blessing to proposed deals including German help in building a Soviet steel mill, expanding Soviet production of chemicals, machine tools, motors and raw materials, and other exchanges of West German technology for Soviet raw materials.

CASE DISMISSED

The case of Paul N. Stark, of Cleveland, against Fred LeBeau Jr., of Mount Sterling, was dismissed in Common Pleas Court Monday at the request of the plaintiff. The case had been in and out of court since January 1971.

Stark, who owned property next to the LeBeau farm in Mount Sterling, allegedly had been granted an easement over a small strip of LeBeau's land for the movement of livestock and farm machinery in 1957.

LeBeau put locked gates across the access in 1969, and in 1971, Stark sought action from the courts to reopen the passage. In July of 1972, Court of Common Pleas found in favor of Stark, the plaintiff, and ordered that he be given right of passage on the land in question.

However, in January 1973, the appellate court found fault with the ruling made by the Court of Common Pleas and sent the case back for retrial.

Following a private settlement, the court acted on a request by Stark that the case be dismissed.

Wide variety of charges aired in Municipal Court

A variety of non-traffic cases were aired before Acting Judge John Bryan in Municipal Court Monday afternoon.

Richard L. Williams, 37, of 2414 Bogus Road, was given suspended $50 fines and 30-day jail terms on four check fraud charges filed against him. He pleaded guilty to the complaints.

Acting Judge Bryan suspended the fines and sentences provided Williams reimburse each store for the insufficient funds checks. Both charges resulted from an incident in the H & H Bar, E. Court St., on May 17. Jester entered guilty pleas to both complaints.

Laurence A. Dumford, 44, of 635 Warren Ave., was fined $10 and costs for allowing his dog to run loose. The complaint was filed by a neighbor, Arnold Binkley, May 20. The fine was suspended provided Dumford keep the dog under reasonable control. He had entered a "no contest" plea to the charge.

Illegal acts OK'd under proposed domestic spying

WASHINGTON (AP) — Burglaries and other illegal acts would have been used by the Central Intelligence Agency and Pentagon under a domestic spying plan proposed in secret White House documents, says Sen. Stuart Symington.

Symington, D-Mo., disclosed existence of the documents on Monday. He said the plans were never carried out.

Kissinger, Tho meet; see progress

PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho met for the fifth time today after Kissinger reported "some progress" in their earlier talks to revitalize the Vietnam ceasefire agreement.

President Nixon's national security adviser and the North Vietnamese Politburo member conferred for a total of 18 hours in their first four meetings that began last Thursday. Their deputies held a marathon 12-hour meeting Sunday and conferred again Monday until nearly midnight.

There were no indications whether the two sides were preparing an interpretive annex to the January ceasefire agreement. But the atmosphere surrounding the talks seemed friendly.

Tho has not made public mention in recent days of the Viet Cong's allegations that U.S. warplanes are bombing in South Vietnam. Last week he threatened to walk out of the talks should any more such bombings occur. The United States has denied the charges.

The North Vietnamese also removed a plaque offensive to the Americans from their villa at Gif sur Yvette, where the talks are held on alternate days. The plaque described the ceasefire agreement as a "victory for the Vietnamese people over imperialism."

Living costs spurt again for April

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living eased slightly in April but the increase still was extraordinarily high, the government reported today. Sharp advances were recorded in the cost of food, clothing, used cars and gasoline.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said consumer prices rose sevenths of one per cent last month, following a nine-tenths of one per cent jump in March. April's jump matched February's increase. March's jump was a 22-year record.

The bureau said food bought in grocery stores rose 1.6 per cent, less than in each of the preceding three months but considerably higher than usual for April.

Fruits and vegetables were higher than normal and beef prices continued to climb, but the government said the increase was much smaller than in recent months.

Prices on a broad range of consumer goods other than food moved up sharply in April, reflecting recent wholesale price increases since the Nixon administration dropped price controls in January.

Watergate testimony resumes

McCord denies clemency bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate conspirator James W. McCord Jr. today denied to Senate investigators that he had tried to persuade the White House to keep him out of jail.

He admitted sending an unsigned letter last December to former White House aide John J. Caulfield threatening that "every tree in the forest will fall, there will be a scorched desert..."

But he said the threat was meant to apply only if the Central Intelligence Agency were falsely blamed for the Watergate wiretapping.

"The letter...did not contain any message requesting any contact with Caulfield, nor any request for the White House to get me out of the case, or off the case. I in fact sought no such contact at any time," McCord testified. McCord also conceded that he had deliberately made two telephone calls to foreign embassies in Washington in an attempt to be overheard on government wiretaps. But he denied that this was a ploy to undermine the government's case against him.

McCord said he made the calls to test the government's honesty. He was convinced his own telephone had been illegally wiretapped, he said, but believed the government would probably deny it if asked about it in court.

He said he tried to be overheard on other taps on embassy telephones to see if the government would admit overhearing him there. He said it didn't. News reports today identified the embassies as those of Israel and Chile.

McCord's credibility as a witness has been under discussion since last Friday, when he told the Senate Watergate investigating committee that Caulfield had pressured him with offers of executive clemency.

Caulfield was listed to follow McCord as a witness at today's televised hearings. He has admitted transmitting offers of executive clemency to McCord, but denied that he invoked President Nixon's name in doing it.

McCord said Caulfield told him the President was aware of the clemency offers and would be informed of McCord's reaction. The White House has repeatedly denied that the President authorized clemency offers to anyone in the Watergate case, or that he was aware of any attempt to cover up the scandal.

McCord today repeated his previously publicized account of how he came to believe that the White House was ruthlessly attempting to blame the CIA for the Watergate breakin, for which McCord and others were convicted of burglary, wiretapping and conspiracy.

He said he had been told through his lawyer, Gerald Alch, that others wanted him to contend at his trial that the CIA was behind the wiretapping and burglary.

McCord, who retired from the CIA after 19 years of service, refused to go along, he said. He said Alch indicated that the CIA's personnel records could be altered to make it appear that McCord had been recalled to service for the Watergate operation.

McCord said Alch persisted in efforts to blame the CIA. "By now, I was completely convinced that the White House was behind the idea...and that the White House was turning ruthless, and would do whatever was politically expedient," McCord said.

It was only then, he said, that he sent his letter to Caulfield.

"The letter read in substance as follows, to the best of my memory," he said. "Dear Jack, I am sorry to have to write you this letter. If (CIA Director Richard) Helms goes, and the Watergate operation is laid at CIA's feet where it does not belong, every tree in the forest will fall, there will be a scorched desert. The whole matter is at the precipice right now. Pass the message that if they want it to blow, they're on exactly the right course. I'm sorry that you'll get hurt in the fallout..."

On another matter McCord said he was told a plane owned by the mysterious billionaire Howard Hughes had been arranged for use in a plan, never carried out, to burglarize the safe of a Las Vegas newspaper publisher. The plane allegedly was to fly the burglars to a Latin American hideout after the breakin.

McCord said fellow conspirator G.

Gordon Liddy had told him that then-Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell told him that "blackmail" information on a Democratic candidate was in the safe of Hank Greenspun, publisher of the Las Vegas Sun. McCord has previously identified the candidate as Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

Supposedly the information would show that Muskie had connections to racketeers, and would be influenced by them if he ever became president, McCord said. But he added that he thought there was also some other motive for wanting to get into Greenspun's safe.

McCord testified that Liddy twice

went to Las Vegas to case the safe for possible burglary. After the second trip, in April or May 1972, McCord was told his own services wouldn't be needed for the planned burglary because there was no alarm system, he said. He quoted Liddy as saying at that time that the burglary team would be flown by a "Howard Hughes plane" to some Central American country after the break-in.

McCord said another of the Watergate conspirators, E. Howard Hunt, had told him the Hughes Tool Co. might need McCord's services after the election, but he never heard any more on the subject.

Could control 10 pct. of production

See gasoline allocations

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high official of the Nixon administration today challenged predictions gasoline prices will rise to astronomical levels this year.

"This concern is unfounded," Deputy Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, chairman of the administration's Oil Policy Committee, told a House panel on special small business problems.

Simon said there will be additional price increases in the future because of increases in the price of foreign crude oil.

"But crude oil accounts for only 20 per cent of the costs of producing gasoline," Simon said. "For instance, if the crude oil price were doubled, this would increase the price of gasoline by eight cents a gallon."

Simon gave the panel a rundown on the administration's program to increase oil and gasoline supplies and to set up a voluntary allocation program for this summer.

Simon disclosed that the voluntary plan will give priority to farmers; food processing and distribution services; health and medical services; police and firefighting services; mass transit; vital transportation services; other state and local government activities; the fuel needs of areas of the country hard hit by shortages; areas affected by natural disasters; public utilities, and communications.

He said that the program would be mandatory if the voluntary plan failed.

But other officials said a combination of the two approaches probably will be followed this summer. The voluntary plan would ask major oil companies to keep their unaffiliated customers supplied with oil and gasoline.

According to Treasury officials, spot shortages already are developing in several states, particularly in the Midwest. Complaints to the Interior Department's oil and gas office are increasing, they said.

An allocation system would affect primarily the oil companies. It is not gasoline rationing because consumers would not be limited to the amount of fuel they can purchase at the pump.

But some oil companies, anticipating

a tight supply, already are adopting their own rationing programs for gasoline stations.

According to sources, the mandatory allocation program would probably be put into effect early in July. That is the time of peak demand for gasoline, when vacationers will be traveling to a greater extent. This demand is expected to drop off in the fall.

Skylab crewmen set for launch

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — With temperatures both hot and cold causing concern, preparations for the Skylab salvage mission centered on Cape Kennedy today as the three astronauts fly here and the countdown begins for a hoped-for launch on Friday.

Before traveling here, the astronauts were to practice repair jobs in a huge Alabama water tank. Flight controllers, meanwhile, are walking what one called "a thermal tightrope" in efforts to keep temperatures within reasonable limits.

There was fear that food and film might spoil in one end of the orbiting station where there are readings near 130 degrees, and that water might freeze and burst pipes at the other end where recordings plummeted to 34 degrees.

Officials hoped to develop maneuvers today to bring temperatures into better balance and hold them steady until the astronauts can rocket up to the orbiting laboratory on man's first space salvage mission.

If the astronauts are unable to deploy a solar shield similar to one ripped from the craft during launching, they will have to abandon the $294 million station in space.

The timetable remained tight for a planned launching of astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz at 9 a.m. EDT Friday. A decision on whether to proceed is expected Thursday from Skylab program director William C. Schneider.

Salvage preparations, which have been scattered at space centers and aerospace plants since the Skylab was launched eight days ago, now are converging here.

Awning-like sun shades designed to cool down the overheated lab and tools for releasing at least one jammed solar panel are to arrive here Wednesday for stowage aboard the astronauts' Apollo ferry ship.

Launch crews plan to start the countdown on the Saturn IB rocket at 10:30 p.m. tonight, a few hours after Conrad, Kerwin, and Weitz fly here from NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center at Huntsville, Ala.

Memphis shooting leaves 6 dead

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — "I guess he just cracked," said William Edward Farmer Jr. "He knew my father — knew him well. We had been children together."

Farmer's father was one of four persons fatally wounded Monday by a gunman who sprayed rifle bullets without warning along a quiet Memphis street. The man also killed a police officer before he was forced from a house by tear gas and shot to death.

Authorities said the gunman, identified as David Sanders, 30, was sauntering down the street with a powerful rifle dangling in his hand when he suddenly whirled and shot to death four neighborhood residents.

Four other people, including a federal parole officer, were wounded as the gunman fired at passing autos. Witnesses told police the first to die was an elderly junkman, John Aldridge, who was collecting pop bottles and tossing them into his two-wheel cart.

The victims were William Farmer, 73, a retired railroad man, Jessie Dooley, and Henrietta Watson, known as "Candy Girl" because she worked in an adjoining candy store.

"One of the ladies from down near the corner called me and told me somebody had gone crazy and just started shooting folks and that my husband was one of them," said Lendora Farmer, 60. Her 28-year-old son, William, said he and Sanders had been classmates together. Police Chief Bill Price said officers arrived at the scene shortly before 4 p.m. EDT and were told by witnesses that the gunman had fled into a house down the street.

As one of the officers, Patrolman David Wayne Clark, 31, went to the rear of the house, the gunman jumped from behind the garage and fired a shot that struck the patrolman in the head. He then raced into another house.

With reinforcements on the scene,

Price directed that tear gas be fired into the house and as Sanders appeared at the front door and brandished his rifle as if to fire, he was shot to death by a volley of shotgun and pistol fire.

Price said Sanders had seven arrests on his record, including charges of rape, carrying a pistol, assault and battery and disorderly conduct and drunkenness.

Price said records showed that Sanders served a three-year prison term on a 1963 conviction of rape against a minor.

Seek to break state lottery stalemate

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A six-member conference committee meets today to see if there is a chance for compromise in the stalemated effort to create a state lottery.

Sen. Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma, a member of the joint Senate-House committee and the main proponent of a lottery, said upon return from the weekend Monday there was "nothing new" in the standoff.

Mottl has mentioned the possibility of introducing a bill creating a lottery if Democrats—who control the House—and Republicans—who run the Senate—cannot agree on how the proceeds would be spent.

The pending measure would create a lottery commission that would report back to the legislature on how a lottery should be implemented. Republicans say they won't agree unless the funds are used for property tax relief.

Democrats want to use at least part of the funds to pay for a Vietnam veterans bonus.

Otherwise, the Democrats claim the proceeds should not be earmarked in the absence of knowing how much revenue a lottery would produce.

The May 8 amendment in which voters lifted a constitutional ban against a lottery stipulated that the funds should go into the general revenue fund. The legislature can appropriate funds as it pleases from the general fund, however.

Senators Monday passed and sent to the House a bill designed to solve a problem that has troubled administrators of both political parties for many years.

The bill, a product of a study by the fact-finding Legislative Service Commission, would spell out the dates for the beginning and end of the terms of members of 100 to 120 state boards and commissions.

Sen. Walter L. White, R-12 Lima, was among sponsors explaining that while the statutes list the length of terms in years, the law is silent as to when they begin and end. The result has been confusion for administrations dating back into the 1950s, White said.

Sen. David Headley, D-28 Barberton, a co-sponsor, said he checked with the office of Gov. John Gilligan and was told that the governor had no opposition to the measure.

Two other Senate bills were approved without significant opposition and sent to the House. They increase the amounts school boards may spend for accreditation purposes from $50 to $150 a year, and require the Division of Soil and Lands to make studies and surveys of land uses for distribution to the public and appropriate state agencies.

The House held only a skeleton session, but returns for floor sessions today.

Storm in Kansas claims child's life

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A child was killed and five other members of her family injured in a storm that slashed across south-central Kansas with winds in excess of 65 miles an hour today.

The winds destroyed the mobile home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Mitzner about 17 miles west of Hutchinson shortly after 1 a.m.

Kimberly Mitzner, 20-months-old, was dead on arrival at a Hutchinson hospital. Her mother, Alice, 30, was reported in serious condition.

Mitzner and three sons also were injured. Mitzner, 37, was in satisfactory condition. The sons, Donald, 10, Charles, 9, and Timothy, 6, suffered multiple fractures.

The storm swept across Hutchinson, knocking down tree and power lines, overturning at least one unoccupied mobile home and damaging a number of commercial buildings and homes.

Power and telephone service was knocked out throughout most of the city for brief periods. A 170-foot communications antenna atop the 12-story Kansas Inn was toppled by the wind.

The Kansas storm followed a night of torrential rains, tornadoes, hail and high winds across the nation's mid-section.

Thunderstorms extending from the southern Plains to the northern Mississippi Valley and Great Lakes region swept southeast across the Midwest.

Five tornadoes touched down in Kansas, Oklahoma and Iowa before midnight. Golfball-size hail pounded parts of Kansas and Iowa, and windows were blown out in eastern Kansas homes during an intense storm. The wind briefly hit 63 miles an hour at St. Louis, Mo.

There were no reports of tornado damage or injuries.

Harveyville, near Topeka, Kan., was drenched with almost 5 inches of rain Monday night and flash-flooding was forecast. Emporia, Kan., was socked with nearly 2 inches of rain and Grand Forks, N.D., over an inch.

Scattered showers remained in parts of New England, but most other areas enjoyed fair skies today.

Woman wins '73 automobile by leaning on it 132 hours

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — For 132 hours and eight minutes, Barbara Buesking hung on to a 1973 model car parked near a local radio station. When she finally let go of the auto, she owned it.

The unusual marathon began Wednesday morning with 25 contestants. All were required to keep two hands on the car and both feet on the ground, except for a 15-minute break every 12 hours.

The next-to-the-last contestant, Alvin Boyd, dropped out about 7:30 p.m. Monday after his doctor told him Mrs. Buesking had a much better chance of winning.

The original field of contestants included two other women, one of whom took a final college examination during her first day. Boyd, a math professor, celebrated his 32nd birthday while attached to the car and used a break to compute final grades for one of his classes.

Another contestant, Del Garland, was arrested by Macon County police and charged with grand theft shortly after he dropped out Friday. The police recognized him in a local newspaper picture of the contest as a man wanted in nearby Hillsboro.

Mrs. Buesking went through most of the endurance contest without shoes, nursing a crushed toe she suffered five days before the marathon began. She spent all of her time with her hands on the trunk of the car, leaning on it at night to sleep.

Along with the $2,700 automobile, she will receive a variety of prizes donated during the marathon sponsored by radio station WSOY, including a fresh paint job for the "sunlight yellow" car, worn down to the primer coat in many places by the constant contact with sweaty hands. Other prizes include new tires, gasoline, car washes, clothes, hairdos, meals and a chair.

Mrs. Buesking said her immediate plans called for her to "go home and make a big pitcher of ice tea, take a shower and wash my hair."

Mass transit called danger

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A trucking industry executive warned here today that the trend toward mass transit is jeopardizing individual rights.

H. Dillon Winship, Jr., president of Georgia Highway Express and first vice chairman of American Trucking Associations, told the Ohio Trucking Association's annual convention:

"The rights of the individual person who may prefer to drive his automobile are completely ignored or trampled on."

The suggestion that the motor vehicle is "some kind of awful monster" is "not only repugnant to the rational mind," but is trying to force Americans to use mass transit, Winship said.

Such thinking, he said, ignores the nation's dependability on the motor carrier industry — now handling 40.5 per cent of the total commercial tonnage.

Winship said he is "not against mass transit per se," but he opposes having to pay highway taxes to support mass transit systems.

He noted Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk's opposition to a ban on automobiles from the downtown area.

"The record clearly shows that rapid rail transit systems are not the answer to our problems of urban congestion," he said.

Such systems are losing money and are short on passengers everywhere in the country. The reason, he said, is that an efficient rail transit must be supported by three conditions — high density work, high density residence, and clearly defined corridors between the two.

He pointed out metropolitan areas are mushrooming in all directions.

Marines ill; ham blamed

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — A breakfast of sliced ham apparently caused food poisoning that put 33 Marines in the hospital, doctors say.

The men became nauseous soon after breakfast Monday and were flown by helicopter to the U.S. Naval Hospital on the Camp Pendleton Base, a marine spokesman said. He said none was seriously ill.

A few men were released Monday night, and the rest were expected to leave the hospital today or Wednesday, the spokesman said.

The ham was served in a mess hall at Camp San Onofre, a training area for basic infantry. Marine Corps doctors said they thought the meat had caused the food poisoning, but could not be sure of the exact nature of the illness until laboratory tests were completed.

Scattered showers were expected to spread slowly eastward across Ohio today and tonight as this month's damp weather pattern continues. Forecasters said the weather the next day or so will be influenced by a low pressure area over the Mississippi Valley.

Although total rainfall has been about normal, Ohio has had some rain practically every day this month, the National Weather Service said. Cleveland had a trace or more of rain on 18 of the first 21 days of the month.

Overnight temperatures ranged from 48 at Youngstown to 62 at Dayton. The mercury was expected to climb into the upper 60s and low 70s today and Wednesday. Temperatures tonight were to drop into the 50s.

Cool with scattered showers Thursday, ending Friday, becoming fair Saturday. Daily high temperatures 65 to 70 north and 70 to 75 south. Lows 55 to 60 Thursday morning, cooling to the mid 40s or low 50s Saturday morning.

Peace plan promoted by Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — The Saigon delegation to the two-party Joint Military Commission made a seven-point proposal today which it said was aimed at implementing the Vietnam cease-fire.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, chief spokesman for the Saigon command, said the Viet Cong rejected the proposal.

It called for a delineation of the zones controlled by each side down to the platoon level and negotiations on the positions each side held prior to the implementation of the truce on Jan. 28.

The proposal also called for a joint appeal by high level officials of the four parties involved in the signing of the cease-fire to stop the bloodshed. This would include the United States and North Vietnam.

A similar appeal was made in March by the four-party Joint Military Commission when the United States and North Vietnam were members, but it fell on deaf ears.

Meanwhile, the Saigon government said it would refuse to take part in an investigation by the International Commission of Control and Supervision into Viet Cong charges of U.S. air attacks earlier this month around Loc Ninh, the Communist headquarters 75 miles north of Saigon and five miles from the Cambodian border. The United States has repeatedly denied the charges.

A circuit court has approved merger for desegregation. "It's clearly a setback, although a 4-4 decision has no value as precedent," said William L. Taylor, former staff director of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission and now director of the Center for National Policy Review at Catholic University Law School in Washington.

"It's certainly a setback in Richmond .... We felt Richmond was a strong case on the merits," said Taylor, an attorney, along with lawyers for the NAACP Defense Fund, Inc., for black parents and children in the case.

"What you have if district lines are such a barrier (to desegregation) are school districts that are in many places almost as segregated as at the time of Brown," said Taylor in reference to the high court's 1954 decision striking down segregated schools in a case known as Brown vs. Board of Education.

Stock list rally short

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened with a strong upward burst today, then quickly slipped back into its sinking pattern of recent sessions.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials stood at 889.15, up 2.64 for the day but down from a surge of about 13 points in the first half-hour of trading. Advancing issues clung to an 852-to-411 lead over those declining in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts described the early rally as a technical rebound from the sharp declines posted last week and Monday amid investor concern over the Watergate case and the monetary and economic outlook.

Rollins, Inc., up ¼ at 18, was the Big Board's most-active stock.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index was down .01 at 22.45.

The Amex's volume leader was Veto Offshore Industries, down ¾ at 21½.

The NYSE's index of some 1500 common stocks was up 0.22 at 54.44.

Baby possums join family

LAKE WORTH, Fla. (AP) — Tim Foltz gave his mother a paper bag full of baby possums for Easter.

In the past few years, the Ken Foltz family has raised turkeys, parakeets, snakes, raccoons, a cow, a hawk and an owl, so Mrs. Foltz wasn't too surprised to find possums as a present.

They've now made themselves at home in the Foltz's shoe repair shop, where they wander in and out of shoes and boxes.

"We were afraid they might scare the customers," Mrs. Foltz said. "But they've become quite an attraction. Some customers bring them bits of food. All the children in the neighborhood come by to see them regularly."

Llama chomps master's arm

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — It took 24 stitches to sew up Don J. Ward's arm after a llama named Jason chomped him Monday afternoon.

Jason has been Ward's pet for about five years, but the 47-year-old probation officer said the animal was frightened by a St. Bernard dog which had gotten into its pen. Ward said was trying to chase away the dog when he was bitten.

C5A prime example of waste

In the early 1960s, Defense Secretary Robert McNamara decided the way to cut defense costs was through a new procedure called total package procurement. It turned out to be one of the most expensive procurement techniques ever devised, as this second in a series from The AP Special Assignment Team demonstrates.

By JEAN HELLER

Associated Press Writer

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — For the Lockheed Corp., building the C5A super cargo plane for the Air Force is like being beaten with a wet rope. It's going to be such a relief when it's over.

What looked like a fairly routine job when Lockheed won the contract to build the airplane in 1965 has turned into a nightmare of cost overruns, delivery delays, performance deficiencies and public ridicule.

When the C5A was first ordered, it was estimated that 120 of the planes would cost just over $3.4 billion. Currently the Air Force has reduced the order to 81 aircraft at a total cost of more than $4.4 billion. The net result is that the unit price of the aircraft has nearly doubled.

Delivery of the 81st plane, which will be the last, was scheduled for this month, two years behind schedule.

The C5As delivered in 1971 had 251 deficiencies per aircraft. Last year was better, but each plane still had 126 deficiencies.

The C5A was supposed to have a flying life of 30,000 hours. Without structural modifications and reductions in air speed and payload capacity, the Air Force now estimates the planes won't last beyond 6,500 hours in their assigned role of airlifting huge amounts of cargo or large numbers of troops.

The fleet of C5As was supposed to be 75 per cent operationally ready at any given time. Because of unreliable aircraft components, inadequate training and numbers of maintenance personnel, only about 54 per cent of the fleet is operationally ready at any one time.

The Air Force estimates it will cost at least $259 million to fix these and other deficiencies in the C5A, but nothing can undo the fact that the airplane has been one of the worst examples of Pentagon procurement in history.

Some of the most serious problems with performance and cost can be traced back to the way the Lockheed contract was written, under a purchasing procedure called total package procurement.

"It was a complicated contract, a terribly complicated contract," Keith Anderson, Lockheed's corporate vice president for government contracts, said in an interview. "It's going to be a case study. They'll be using it in the Harvard Business School for the next 25 years as an example of what not to do."

In total package procurement, a would-be contractor makes a package bid on the development and production of an item. For the winning bidder, that package bid becomes a fixed-price contract, with fixed required performance specifications for the product and fixed delivery dates. Price, performance and delivery are inflexible.

"What they were asking us to do was develop something and price the production product at the same time," Anderson said. "But until you've developed something, you haven't got the faintest idea what producing it will cost. Yet that's the kind of judgement we had to make."

"What you're bidding is your best guess, but then if you win the contract, your best guess becomes your contract and you're locked in. If you've made a bad guess, you're in trouble."

And Lockheed made a very bad guess. There is no provision in a total package procurement for building prototypes or reproduction items, those early models on which bugs are ironed out. Under a TPP contract, all items built are supposed to be the real thing, and under that setup, problems don't begin to show up until the product is on the production line, the worst possible place to try to cope with trouble.

"In the C5A, the essential error that was made, as in so many of these big total package programs, is that they did not wait to go into production until they had all the problems shaken out of the system they were developing," David Packard, former deputy secretary of Defense, said in an interview.

"The desire of the military to accelerate a program and to define an operational date too early and consider that date as being fixed and to define the whole program that way makes the project more rigid than realistic."

"We thought we had an airplane project that would just require a scale-up of existing technology," Anderson said. "We were wrong. It was a far more difficult job than we had anticipated. We ran into problems that caused delays. Then the economy—inflation—took off on us. That made the delays terribly expensive, far above what the contract covered. And fixing the problems was made all the more difficult because the Air Force was so inflexible on the plane's performance."

Actually, that kind of inflexibility is designed as a cost control. Under TPP, no changes are supposed to be made in an item after a contract is signed because changes make the item more expensive. But the dictum also leaves no room for tradeoffs, the process of modifying one specification so another can be met. Tradeoffs in the development stage are invariably necessary since few new concepts ever work in reality the way they do on paper.

"There was a problem with the C5A being too heavy," Anderson said. "It wouldn't take off in the short distance the Air Force specified. That could have been taken care of with a little more power in the engines which was possible and wouldn't have cost much. But that would have changed engine specifications and the Air Force wouldn't permit it."

"It's like asking an automobile dealer for a car with a 500-horsepower engine that gets 30 miles to a gallon. He'll tell you you have to settle for one or the other or a combination somewhere in between. But if you're like the Air Force, you tell him you want what you asked for and that's it."

While Lockheed has been having problems because changes couldn't be made in specifications, Litton Industries is having trouble because changes were made in a TPP contract it holds.

Litton is building five giant Landing Helicopter Assault ships for the Navy at the company's modern, new Pascagoula, Miss., shipyard. Litton has threatened to take the Navy to court to settle financial claims the company made for reimbursement of costs incurred when the Navy made changes in the LHAs after the project was underway.

Citing the change orders, Litton is asking $1,056 billion for the five ships. The Navy has said it won't settle for more than $946 million.

"There was a whole slew of very significant changes made in the ship in terms of Navy requirements," Litton President Fred O'Green said in an interview at his Beverly Hills office.

"Under a total package contract the Navy shouldn't have been in the shipyard let alone changing the specification on the ships. We made a mistake when we didn't throw them out."

On the other side, Litton critics say a big part of the cost growth problem was the company's inability to get its new shipyard and shipbuilding techniques going efficiently, and Litton executives concede the project was badly run at the outset.

The first yard managers were airplane builders with no shipbuilding experience, a problem which has since been corrected. Moreover, the yard was using a new modular concept in shipbuilding and didn't get it shaken down before taking on the Navy's LHA contract plus a contract to build Navy destroyers.

However the Litton-Navy dispute is resolved, large total package procurements are no more. The Defense Department has decided they just don't work, something the contractors say they pointed out when Defense Secretary Robert McNamara first proposed TPP in the early 1960s. Since leaving the Pentagon in 1967, McNamara has refused all requests for interviews.

"We complained time and time again," O'Green said. "But they remembered the days when everything was cost plus fixed fee, when the contractor got a set fee plus all his costs. Whole companies, even whole industries were built at government expense. So McNamara pushed the pendulum all the way across the board."

"The whole idea of trying to price something you've never designed or built before is absurd," said Robert Anderson, president and chief operating officer of Rockwell International. "This company complained as loudly as anybody else that it was absurd, and yet we went out with the others and bid on total package contracts."

"We bid on those jobs and we took them when we won because it was our business to take them. It was either take them or go out of business. We don't operate in a free market situation. If we don't like the way one guy wants to deal we can't go out and deal with somebody else. If the Defense Department doesn't like our bomber design, we can't go sell it to Russia or China."

"So when the Defense Department says we're going to do it this way, we do it this way. They're the only game in town."

Peking's Press effrontery

The Chinese government has overtly attempted to influence the advertising policy of the New York Times. The kindest thing to be said is that this piece of effrontery must be based on failure to understand what freedom of the press is all about.

Peking has often voiced more or less informal objections to the Times' publication of political ads paid for by anti-Peking groups and the Chiang Kai-shek regime in Taiwan. Recently the level of objection was stepped up: the counsel to the Chinese mission to the United Nations protested face to face to the paper's managing editor.

The editor replied that it was a matter of policy to carry advertisements expressing any political view, whether or not the Times agrees with it. He said it was felt that this is a part of freedom of the press. The editor also asked, "Does that mean you will not allow us to open a bureau in Peking?" and received the reply, "You can draw your own conclusions."

The conclusion one comes to is that this is indeed what Peking means: knuckle under to our official views on political ads, or forego the privilege of maintaining a bureau in our capital city. That is, as remarked above, a piece of effrontery.

If Peking genuinely seeks to improve U.S.-Chinese relations, it would do well to recognize that it cannot tamper with American freedom of the press.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Millions of Chinese work as one

HANGCHOW — You start in China with the 800 million and, the new social order having released their energies, they are everywhere. For the newcomer the impression is of a people moving irresistibly forward.

On a Sunday the Great Wall is black with masses marching up the steep slopes to the highest watch towers. They have been brought from Peking in trucks and buses provided by commune or factory for the outing of their day off. At the Ming tombs the same crowds pass through the great red gate and queue up to go down into crypt.

They are good-natured, cheerful seeming, with little pushing or elbowing. Here is a son or a grandson — the Chinese look so much younger than their years, you can never tell — helping an elderly woman up the steep slope. She has the tiny feet, stumps almost, that resulted from the foot-binding custom of the upper class in the Old China.

Children, fresh and healthy looking, are all over the place. They suck on popsicles sold by vendors, they munch on half-loaves of bread. Teen-agers march with a leader holding high a pole with the red flag of the People's Republic blowing out stiffly in the strong wind.

HERE in Hangchow the pagodas and pavilions of the Old China, or new structures similar in design, reflect the historic past. In the 12th Century the city was the center of a school of painting noted for the landscapes of the dramatic mountains encircling beautiful West Lake.

From the beginning of the Sung dynasty the city, as the seat of imperial power, had a fabulous splendor. Marco Polo wrote of one of its districts that had been entirely turned over to entertainment "as the greatest city which may be found in the world where so many pleasures may be found that one fancies himself to be in paradise."

The shores of West Lake are today handsomely wooded with willows that bend over the water and newly planted trees lining the roadways. The setting of Silk Mill No. 1, which turns out brilliant brocades, is a carefully tended garden with flowering borders and broad passageways.

Hua Kang Park, where President Nixon fed the big goldfish, is bright with flowers and immaculately kept.

AS IT WAS seven centuries ago, Hangchow is where the Chinese dream of going. Yet even on a weekend the crowds are comparatively small.

Time and geography are part of the mixture of a people who have undergone years of turbulent change as we had reason in a small instance to realize. An overseas Chinese in Washington asked us to try to find in Shanghai a brother whom he had not seen in 23 years. Thanks to the diligent efforts of friendly escorts, he was located even though he had undergone a name change.

He was absent on his regular run on a freighter to Dairen and his wife came to see us in the Peace Hotel. Still young-looking, she could hardly contain her excitement. The good news to take back is that the 83-year-old father is alive and well. One can conjecture that this is happening in thousands of instances as overseas Chinese come in large numbers. They are being encouraged to visit their motherland.

Some, as in the instance above, had gone to Hong Kong or Taiwan, then to Chinese centers in Asia and, a few, to North America.

THE KNITTING together is occurring in a variety of ways, large and small. Mass organizations attacked during the cultural revolution are being rebuilt. Trade unions, youth leagues, peasant organizations — these are an important second channel of communication to the countryside for Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai.

That is to say, they supplement the three-cornered organization in every commune and factory of the Army, the Cadres and the peasants and workers.

It would be inaccurate to speak of autonomous authority in the provincial capitals. Yet authority is dispersed inasmuch as the revolutionary standing committees that administer each have a degree of independence in decision-making.

These administrators, as we have discovered, are intensely hard-working, alert, intelligent, determined to push on, while frankly stating how far they still have to do. An outstanding example is Lu Cheng-hao of the revolutionary standing committee of the big tea plantation near here.

He began life begging with his mother, since his father could not earn enough on the plantation to keep them alive. It is all part of the drama of a people who are to be reckoned with as never before in the future of mankind.

Ohio colleges overwhelmed by med student applications

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's four medical schools have received an avalanche of 15,816 applications from students hoping to join freshman classes next term. Almost all will have to be rejected.

There are only 549 openings between the four schools—Case Western Reserve University, University of Cincinnati, Toledo's Medical College of Ohio and Ohio State University.

"The problem is not just local; it's also national," said admissions chief John L. Caughey Jr. at CWRU. "Estimates are that about 42,000 students are competing for 14,000 freshman openings across the country."

"Overwhelming" and "unbelievable" are the words medical school officials in Ohio use to describe the avalanche of applications this year.

They use the same words to describe the job of deciding which students will be rejected and which admitted. The schools seem agreed that most of the applicants this year are not just qualified for the schooling, but well qualified.

"It's a tough assignment," Caughey said. "When we get down to the final group of 500 or 600 kids we interview, we are talking about 500 or 600 very good kids," he said. "At that point, decision making perhaps could just as well be done by a lottery."

Cincinnati received 6,419 application for 120 openings, and CWRU had 5,225 students apply for its 138 freshman slots. About half of the CWRU freshman class and about 40 per cent of Cincinnati's are chosen from outside Ohio.

Ohio State University and Toledo's Medical College publicized their plans to stick to nearly all-Ohio freshmen classes this year in hopes it would cut down the applications. But OSU still netted 2,300 applications for 227 openings. Toledo had 1,872 students competing for a 64-member freshman class.

Representatives of the medical schools say the tight job market for scientists in research and teaching has driven many students away from other careers to the medical schools.

Other reasons listed include a more altruistic spirit among graduating collegians, more women applicants and the glamor of the medical profession displayed on television and in the movies.

Tip is credited with drug haul

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—A tip from a housewife was credited today with seizure by the Regional Enforcement Narcotics Unit (RENU) of 10,000 "hits" of LSD and mescaline, with a drug market value of $25,000.

RENU agents said the woman found the LSD and mescaline in a bag in a basement washing machine in a home into which she moved Sunday. She called police.

Officers said that since the house had been vacant for three months and the basement door was unlocked it had apparently been used as a "drop" for the drugs.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Toward industrial impotence

Sen. Edward Kennedy, who slipped a bill through the last Congress creating an agency called the Office of Technology Assessment, is now busy trying to drum up sentiment in both houses of Congress for funding it with some four million dollars to start in business.

The idea would be to bring ex-Congressman Emilio Daddario of Connecticut back to Washington to head the new agency and to provide him with a 12-member advisory council drawn from the scientific world to make studies of the probable effects of technological innovations.

All of this sounds very innocent, but two things are certain about it. One, with the country on its present Ralph Nader-cum-ecology kick, no new effort to solve the energy crisis or to keep U.S. military technology abreast of the Soviets would be permitted to see the light of day without five years of exhausting preliminary talk, and two, nobody in his right mind would be willing to commit private capital to industrial research and development that might be knocked down by politicians with anti-business axes to grind.

WHY CAN'T PEOPLE see that when government tries to apply political solutions to an economic problem, it simply stops the works? If the energy crisis is to become a political football, it means that we will get no new electrical generating capacity and no new sources of domestic or offshore oil supply before the Arab countries have assembled enough gold and dollars to buy up whole sections of American industry.

We will still be talking, and waiting for the Office of Technology Assessment to make one more study, at a time when the Soviets announce they have perfected a laser beam deathray and when some foreign scientists comes through with a method of getting cheap energy from hydrogen extracted from sea water.

You don't believe me that this sort of thing could possibly happen? Well, consider what have already happened in the development of the centrifuge process for getting enriched atomic fuel at a relatively cheap cost. It wasn't so long ago that some of our biggest power-equipment companies were immersed in centrifuge R. and D.

When it became apparent that it would be easy for a private investment group to bypass the necessity of building huge $2.5-billion Oak Ridge-type diffusion plants to make usable atomic fuel, the Atomic Energy Commission got scared. It was frightened lest somebody, using a small-scale centrifuge, might, so to speak, begin to make atomic bombs in his garage.

So, in an excess of caution, it called upon the big power machinery companies to turn in their atomic blueprints for impoundment in bonded warehouses. Since the AEC had the final say over any application of atomic energy, important private atomic energy R. and D. stopped.

But nobody can really halt progress as long as physicists and chemists can read each others' theoretical papers. The Dutch and the Germans went on to perfect the cheaper centrifuge method of enriching atomic fuel. Now, after a waste of years, the AEC, realizing that Denmark or Israel or any other small nation can afford to make atomic bombs if it so desires, has told some of our bigger companies to go ahead with R. and D. that will make our expensive Oak Ridge processes obsolete.

WE WILL BE in a position to finance the development of atomic energy without vast subsidies. Provided, of course, the ecologists can be satisfied that atomic waste can be safely contained and buried and that new atomic plants will be properly engineered to prevent disastrous leaks. Normally, it takes five years to satisfy an ecological sceptic.

The best thing that Congress could do would be to strangle the Kennedy Office of Technology Assessment by refusing to give it a nickel. Then the Senate should offer some far-reaching tax incentives to industry to push such things as coal gasification, atomic power plants and offshore oil drilling, with special attention to safety engineering.

With the carrot substituted for the political gabfest, we might begin to catch up with the Japanese, the West Germans, the Dutch and the Israelis, to say nothing of avoiding the Arab blackmail that is surely coming in the late Seventies if a political committee dominated by Teddy Kennedy and Emilio Daddario is running our industry.

Dear Abby:

Are boss' girl friend's messages part of job?

DEAR ABBY: If you feel that a private secretary should not sit in judgment of her boss' private affairs, then she should not be imposed upon to take insignificant, petty messages from his girl friend. After all, a secretary is employed to support the welfare of the business her boss represents.

No one should be asked to lie, and a secretary should feel remorse when she has to tell lies for her boss.

Your second offense was to inform that secretary that this is one of her secretarial duties. It is NOT!

OUT OF THE MIDDLE

DEAR OUT: And what if the boss owns his own business? A secretary is paid to convey messages to and from her boss, whatever they may be, and whether the message is from a business associate, his wife, or girl friend is none of her business. If she feels "remorse" when she tells a caller that her boss is "tied up" when he is not or that he is "out" when he is busy, she has the privilege of finding a job that's more to her liking.

DEAR ABBY: I am having a fight with my girl friend. We wanted to go dutch treat to a drive-in movie and I was a little low on money, so I suggested that she drive my car and I would ride in the trunk of the car.

She agreed, took the wheel, and drove to the drive-in. When we got there she refused to let me out. I pounded and pounded but she wouldn't let me out. I finally gave up and had to stay cramped up in the trunk while she watched the movie. After the movie, she drove herself home and then she let me out.

She said she wanted to teach me a lesson because what I wanted to do was not only dishonest it was stingy, too. I say the theater charge all they can get, which is way too much and anybody who can get in for free deserves to.

Was she right, or was I?

CRAMPED

DEAR CRAMPED: She was. Your chintzy stunt backfired. But watch that girl friend. She's a tough teacher!

DEAR ABBY: I am 12 years old. My parents are considered nice people. My father makes a good living and Mom has never had to work. She has a lot of friends and is always doing something for the church.

Now for my problem: My Mom shoplifts. I've known it for several months but she doesn't know that I know. I've seen her take stuff like cans of sardines, dress patterns, cosmetics—anything she can slip into her purse. We're not poor, Abby. Mom can buy just about anything she wants. What gets me is that she is always lecturing me on the importance of being honest and truthful.

What should I do? I keep thinking I should tell my father, but I just hate to. I'm so afraid Mom will get caught and sent to jail and the reputation of our whole family will be ruined. I'm the oldest. I can't take a chance on getting a letter from you at home so please put your answer in the paper but leave out my city. Thank You.

WORRIED FOR MOM

DEAR WORRIED: First, tell you Mom what you've told me. (She could be suffering from "kleptomania" an uncontrollable compulsion to steal.) With treatment, kleptomaniacs can be cured; if she doesn't stop shoplifting after that, tell your father.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DESPERATE IN AURORA": WHICH Aurora? Aurora, Illinois? Colorado? Indiana? Missouri? Nebraska? Minnesota? Or Aurora, Ontario, Canada? My column is read in Auroras all over the map, and unless you put your address on the letter (NOT the envelope) I cannot reply.

Miss Carol Anne Wallace became the bride of Thomas Burch Hixson May 6 in First Presbyterian Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wallace, Rt. 4, and Mr. Hixson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Hixson, Rt. 1, Greenfield.

The Rev. Gerald Wheat performed the double-ring ceremony at 3:30 p.m. before an altar with vases of yellow, blue and pink daisies and babies' breath. The pews were marked with the same flowers accented with satin ribbon.

Miss Jean Marks and Ralph May, vocalists, and Robert Anderson organist, presented a half-hour of music prior to the wedding.

She carried a cascade of white daisies accented with yellow miniature roses, babies' breath and ivy.

Maid of honor Kathy Wallace, sister of the bride, wore a floor-length A-line dress of deep pink with a smock of contrasting light pink. Mrs. Denver Roberts, Miss Cindy Thompson and Miss Lin Myers wore identically designed dresses and smocks in alternating colors of blue and pink. Each carried a colonial bouquet of yellow, blue and pink daisies with babies' breath and rainbow streamers. Little Miss Kerrie Beechler, niece of the groom, wore a dress designed identical to that of the maid of honor. The dress was pink with a white smock and she carried a basket of daisy petals.

Steve Lewis served as best man. Seating the wedding guests were Robert Judkins, John Cokonougher and Robert Bustley. Doug Beechler, nephew of the groom, and Mark Bryant, cousin of the bride, were ringbearers.

The bride's mother chose an iced mint coat and dress ensemble with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow cymbidium orchid. The groom's mother wore a soft pink ensemble with contrasting accessories and a pink cymbidium orchid.

Hostesses for the reception held in Persinger Hall were Mrs. Albert Bryant, aunt of the bride; Mrs. John Bryant, cousin; Miss Dal DeMent, Mrs. Tom Paisley and Mrs. Dave Bowdle. ## TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences tonight is putting on a long-overdue separate Emmy awards show that honors what the academy considers the best of this season's television news and documentary efforts.

The news awards ceremonies, formerly buried in Emmy shows that primarily concerned entertainment, will be broadcast from New York at 9:30 p.m. EDT on the CBS television network.

Alas, the nature of TV is such that the shows will be pitted against rerun of made-for-TV movies on NBC and ABC at 10 p.m.

Gold prices high, but volume low
LONDON (AP)—The latest gold-dollar rush is generating lots of talk and plenty of change in prices but it's a minuscule as far as the volume of business is concerned.

Dealers say the trading in the past week on Europe's gold and money markets has been light to moderate, and far below the huge levels reached during the February monetary crisis that resulted in the last dollar devaluation.

The dollar dropped to record lows Monday in Paris, Frankfurt, Zurich and Oslo Monday, while the price of gold closed at an all-time high of $112 an ounce — $6.50 above Friday's closing — in Zurich and London, the world's two biggest bullion markets.

Dealers said one factor in the price shifts was the report in a number of European newspapers that the Watergate scandals might force President Nixon to resign.

The dealers added that the markets were jittery, responding to the wildest rumors with volatile price swings. They said that even without Watergate, confidence in the dollar is at a low ebb because of concern over the continuing deficit in the U.S. balance of payments and the renewed inflation in the United States.

The lack of confidence in the U.S. economy appeared to be affecting the stock markets also. Brokers reported widespread selling of U.S. securities by Europeans and demand for gold mining stocks.

Ironically, NBC's competing effort against the Emmy news show at that hour will be a one-hour news special on the Watergate case.

More than 60 programs, spot news reports and individuals have been nominated for Emmy this year. NBC has the most nominations—28. It's followed by CBS with 20, ABC with 11 and the Public Broadcasting Service with three.

The nominees are in seven basic categories, ranging from "Outstanding Achievement Within Regularly Scheduled News Programs" to "Special Classification of Outstanding Program and Individual Achievement."

The latter, according to the academy, provides an "award for unique program and individual achievements, which does not fall into a specific category, or is not otherwise recognized."

Gotcha.
The scheduled presenters on tonight's show include presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger; Coretta Scott King, the widow of Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.; and Frank Stanton, who recently retired as vice chairman of CBS and now is president of the American Red Cross.

The network anchormen—John Chancellor of NBC, Walter Cronkite of CBS and Howard K. Smith and Harry Reasoner of ABC—also will be on hand, as will Robert MacNeil, senior correspondent for the National Public Affairs Center for Television.

On Jan. 1, 1973, Ohio had 1,428 miles of Interstate highways open to traffic, including 241 miles of the Ohio Turnpike. In addition, 48 miles were under construction, 84 miles in detail-design stages and 10 miles in the pre-hearing phase.

Ohio Perspective

Bartunek seeks statewide image

By ROBERT L. SHAFFER
Associated Press Writer
CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Joseph W. Bartunek, once one of the best-known political leaders in Ohio, realizes he now has a big problem in returning to politics—recognition.

If he is to win the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate next spring, he has to reach downstate voters.

"My recognition level outside Cleveland is pretty low," Bartunek agreed. "I hope to combat that by a grassroots campaign . . . meeting with people, as many as possible, throughout the state."

And since the 49-year-old Cleveland attorney announced his plans recently, he said, he has heard from "people I've worked with in most areas of the state . . . and the reaction has been very favorable."

Howard Metzenbaum, Cleveland attorney and businessman faced the recognition problem in his unsuccessful run for the Senate in 1970. He spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in an advertising campaign to make his name well known around Ohio.

Bartunek said he will attack the problem by "going into each of the 88 counties—meeting with people and leaders throughout the state."

Bartunek has had a varied and colorful political career. He said he feels "a terrible need to get into politics . . . on the legislative level, which I know best."

It was in the Ohio Senate where he had his first political successes. Elected to that body at the age of 24, Bartunek became Democratic minority leader in three years.

He served in the Senate until 1964 except for a two-year break in 1958-1959, when he held the powerful post of

Marshal Konev dead

MOSCOW (AP)—Marshal Ivan S. Konev, 75, a celebrated World War II commander who later became involved in Kremlin intrigues, died Monday. He claimed that he, not Marshal Georgi Zhukov, was the real hero of Berlin because his tanks opened a breach in Berlin's southern defenses in 1945.

San Francisco's first cable car had its trial run on Aug. 1, 1873.

Senate clerk. It was during that period that he became involved in the incident which came to be known as "the night the lights went out."

To block Senate action on a bill, Bartunek had the lights in the Senate chamber turned out, creating pandemonium.

He left the Senate in 1964 to run for Cuyahoga County probate judge, won the election but gave up the $26,000-a-year judicial post in 1970 to return to politics—this time as unpaid chairman of the Democratic party's Cuyahoga County central and executive committees.

 Edwin M. Nestor, superintendent of schools, said that he would like to see what can be done to make the tennis courts at Gardner Park a viable facility for community recreation. Although it was suggested that the courts might be converted for basketball, the consensus seemed to be that renovation of the tennis facility would be more appreciated by local residents. Estimates for the necessary repairs will be considered at the next meeting of the board.

 All public employees in Fayette County and their wives are invited to attend the meeting, Johnson said.

Mental health changes noted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Community-based mental health facilities have decreased Ohio's mental hospital population by 21 per cent since 1970, according to Gov. John Gilligan.
 "We've learned that it's possible—and often preferable—to provide mental health services to Ohioans near their own homes, without making it necessary for them to break family ties and enter a state institution," Gilligan said Monday.
 Gilligan said community programs and resultant smaller hospital populations have been an important part of his "humanization program."

THE RESIGNATION of Miss Gayle Sullivan, a teacher at Sunnyside School, was received by the board, and a request by Mrs. Regina DelPonte to have her summer work days changed was approved.

Gary Schaffer and Maurice Pfeifer were designated as driver education teachers for the summer, and approval was given to the proposed hiring of seven persons to take care of the summer maintenance.

A REPORT on the Gardner Park lighting project disclosed that most of the materials have been received, and as soon as Dayton Power and Light Co. provides the cross beams, the lights can be installed.

In other action, the board approved the list of seniors eligible for graduation from Washington Senior High School, and the board resolved to send two of the less experienced custodians to a one-day training school June 18 at Grove City High School.

Annexations could affect tax sharing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Secretary of State Ted Brown has asked 27 cities to report recent annexations to his office by June 1 so they will not lose any federal revenue sharing funds.

Brown was designated the clearing officer for such information by Gov. John Gilligan less than a month ago.

Federal officials on Feb. 1 asked Gilligan to name a state official as clearing officer, but the governor did not designate Brown until April 27. Brown said he did not know it until April 30.

Brown said he has written federal authorities informing them of his appointment at such short notice and asked them what steps can be taken to assure that no one loses any funds.

Brown said he didn't object to being declared the official responsible since he has a breakdown of Ohio census figures in his office.

But, he added, that the cities which have annexed new areas could lose funds if they don't reply to his office so he can certify population increases to Washington.

Several aides in Brown's office felt that Gilligan, a Democrat, may have delayed certification of Brown, a Republican, in order to embarrass him if he fails to meet the deadline.

Brown, however, said he sees no problem in meeting the June 1 deadline if the cities report their new population figures.

Eagleton has no evidence data stolen

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton says he has no evidence that the White House or any other government agency had his medical records prior to last year's Democratic National Convention.

Eagleton was referring to newspaper reports which said records of his medical history were in the possession of John D. Ehrlichman, former presidential aide. The reports said Ehrlichman had the Missouri Democrat's medical files before word of his shock treatments was leaked in the 1972 election campaign.

Eagleton resigned as Sen. George S. McGovern's vice presidential running mate Aug. 31, 1972, after disclosing he underwent electric shock treatments for depression and nervous exhaustion.

"I have no evidence that the White House or any other government agency had my medical records. I have been told by the FBI that they did not have the file," Eagleton said.

Asked if he felt betrayed by reports of political espionage against Democratic candidates seeking the party's presidential nomination last summer, he said: "I don't feel betrayed. I feel deeply, deeply saddened."

He made his comments during a joint news conference here with former Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Mark Hodges trial opens in Findlay

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP)—A three-judge panel in Hancock County Common Pleas Court began hearing testimony Monday in the trial of Mark Hodges, who has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon and assault to commit murder.

The charges stem from an alleged attack on Dawn Menery, 23, of Findlay last December.

The plaintiff took the stand and said Hodges stopped her car while she was out delivering Christmas gifts to children in connection with her social work.

Miss Menery said that Hodges posed as a policeman, frisked her, then threatened to kill her if she would not let him tie her up.

Before the testimony began Hancock County Common Pleas Court Judge Joe Moorehead heard privately from a psychiatrist who said Hodges was sane and able to stand trial.

The defendant has been undergoing tests at Lima State Hospital.

The judges hearing the trial are Moorehead, Wood County Common Pleas Court Judge Kenneth Adams and retired Judge Russell Kear of Wyandot County.

Hodges was acquitted in 1967 of the slaying of Karen Kern of Sylvania. She was the 20-year-old niece of Ohio AFL-SCIO President Frank King.

LBJ cattle auctioned

STONEWALL, Tex. (AP)—Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson has thrown what may have been one of the last of the big LBJ Ranch parties to sell off her husband's prize herd of Hereford cattle.

A total of 213 cattle were sold during the 4½-hour auction on Monday, bringing in $140,560. The highest price paid for a single head was $2,650 for a bull.

"This day is a mixture of sadness with, I hope, a touch of festivity," Mrs. Johnson told the approximately 700 would-be cattle buyers and spectators gathered under a bright red-and-yellow canvas tent. A barbecue picnic lunch was served in a second tent and two beer stands were set up under mesquite trees.

"Lyndon started buying cattle soon after we first moved here 20 years ago ... This was Lyndon's love. But the time has come to sell," she said.

Sales workers said cattle buyers from 14 states, Puerto Rico and Mexico attended the sale of 33 Hereford bulls and 129 cows, 52 of them with calves.

The first successful Navy airship, the F1, was made in Akron following World War I.

MONEY DOES MATTER . . .

By A. R. BRYANT

GOT ALL YOUR EGGS IN ONE BASKET?

There is only one time when you or your family should think about investing, and that is after you have taken care of certain essential musts.

Your basic spending pattern should be producing a regular surplus of income over expense.

You should have an adequate reserve fund, perhaps extra savings in an account, enough insurance to protect your family, and provision should have been made for housing in keeping with your family's needs.

Then, and only then, should you consider an investing program — of which there are many types, meeting different objectives.

Your needs and desires in the investment areas of growth, income, safety, and protection against inflation should all be carefully analyzed and studied.

And, include diversification. Never put all your eggs in one basket!

Giants clip Houston's NL West lead

★★★ Young reliever saves Frisco's 9-4 victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When the San Francisco Giants bring in reliever Randy Moffitt, it's game, set, match.

Moffitt, the second most successful athlete in his family...his sister is tennis star Billie Jean King...earned his eighth save of the baseball season Monday night, preserving San Francisco's 9-4 victory over Houston.

The young reliever allowed just two hits in 3 1-3 innings work, nailing down the nationally televised victory.

The victory moved the Giants within five percentage points of first-place Houston in the National League West.

Elsewhere Monday night, Pittsburgh nipped Philadelphia 5-4 in the only other National League game played. Chicago at Montreal and St. Louis at New York were rained out.

In the only American League games scheduled, Boston defeated Baltimore 4-1, Cleveland battered the New York Yankees 10-5 and Oakland blanked Kansas City 5-0.

Pittsburgh wiped out a four-run deficit against Steve Carlton with homers by Willie Stargell and Manny Sanguillen and beat the Phillies on Richie Zisk's pinch single in the ninth. It was a distinctly un-Carlton performance for the 1972 27-game winner.

Carlton is 4-6 and has failed to hold leads in three of his last four starts. Boston ended a four-game losing streak with Luis Tiant throttling Baltimore on four hits. Luis Aparicio drove in two runs with a two-out, bases-loaded single in the seventh inning and Carl Yastrzemski doubled home two more in the ninth.

New York roughed up Gaylord Perry for four runs on five hits in the second inning, but Cleveland's ace survived the rally and the Indians came from behind and beat the Yankees.

Buddy Bell contributed four singles and George Hendrick had two singles and a two-run homer for the Indians.

Monkey business at Indy Speedway quickly checked

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—It isn't easy to put one over on Frank DelRoy, and there's at least one team at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway that must wish it hadn't tried.

DelRoy is the longtime technical supervisor for the U.S. Auto Club and in that capacity has final say over certification of cars for the Indianapolis 500-mile race.

During the final weekend of qualifications at the Speedway, an apparent bit of chicanery came to light as the Norris Industries team got caught with its number changed.

Sam Posey, who finished fifth in the 1972 Indy 500, had his car bumped from the starting lineup for this year's race only hours after DelRoy announced the USAC technical committee caught Posey's crew in an indiscretion.

It seems that Posey had qualified the No. 34 Eagle-Offenhauser the first weekend at such a slow speed that he was sure it would not stay in the field for the May 28 race. So he announced to the world the team had bought a new Eagle-Offy and was putting the number 31 on it.

Posey said it would be available to qualify if his first car was bumped.

DelRoy said Monday, "The car was actually a fraud. They cleaned it up and removed all identification and it got past the first inspection crew...but it didn't get by me."

What DelRoy meant is that the crew had tried to change No. 34 to No. 31. No car can legally qualify twice for the same Indy race.

DelRoy said, "Even though these cars are all similar, there's always a little difference and I quite often make mental note of that difference. We finally got them to admit what they did. But I was told the crew was under direct orders from Fred Carrillo."

Carrillo is the owner of the two Norris Industries entries at the Speedway — No. 34 and No. 35. The second car made the lineup late Sunday with veteran Jim McElreath a last-minute choice as driver.

Carrillo faces a possible fine up to $100 and suspension of his USAC license for up to one year. Posey and chief mechanic Jack McCormick are not expected to be penalized.

There had been rumors that Posey, from San Juan Capistrano, Calif., might replace McElreath as driver for the No. 35 Eagle-Offy for the race. But Carrillo said Monday that McElreath will be at the wheel for his 10th Memorial Day race.

The attempted hijinks and discovery underscored the thoroughness of the USAC inspectors.

When the cars are first brought into the garage area at the Speedway, they are checked for serial numbers, weighed and measured. They are then torn down and completely inspected by a USAC crew of 12 or 13 persons.

Just for starters, the fuel tank cannot hold more than 75 gallons, there can be no leaks of any kind, and the cars must weigh at least 1,500 pounds.

The cars cannot be more than 15 feet long, nor more than 32 inches high from the bottom of the body to the top of the air foil wings. The wings cannot extend back more than 42 inches from the doesn't perform as well, even though he may be full of pain killers and pills."

Pollins is an advocate of muscle building and rebuilding with the Nautilus machines, innovations in the sports world.

The Nautilus, named after the sea shell because of the shape of levers it uses, is a series of exercise machines designed to exercise individual or individual groups of muscles.

It is more efficient than plain weight lifting, said Pollins, because it puts the strain on the exact muscles you are trying to strengthen.

"Take Mike Reid," Pollins said of the Al-Pro defensive tackle, with consistently bad knees after operations.

"We've built up all the muscles around the knee joints to a degree that his knees are able to hold up," said Pollins proudly. "Last year he didn't have any trouble at all."

Ol' Diz treats viewers with his homespun wit

NEW YORK (AP) — While the San Francisco Giants and Houston Astros went about the business of baseball, the television viewers got a taste of non-stop play-by-play, expertise, reminiscing and cornpone humor.

And the fans at home and the 24,186 at the game were treated, if that's the proper word, to an off-key, a cappella, gravelly, drawing version of The Wabash Cannonball.

It wasn't exactly Humble Howard, Dandy Don and Fearless Frank—but then, it wasn't a gridiron they were overlooking.

It was the diamond in the cavernous Houston Astrodome and it was the newest entry in show business-sports, Curt, Tony and ol' Diz.

Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubek will be there every Monday night for NBC's

Monday night Game of the Week. The new addition is a weekly celebrity, in this case...YAHOO!...Dizzy Dean.

In weeks to come, it could range from baseball greats like Joe DiMaggio and Casey Stengel to other sports stars like basketball's Dave DeBusschere of the New York Knicks and tennis hustler Bobby Riggs...and ultimately to diverse personalities such as Dinah Shore, Woody Allen, Pearl Bailey, perhaps Tiny Tim, and others.

But for the premiere of the experiment—one which had been lambasted by hard-core baseball fans long before it ever got on the air—NBC went for the combination man, baseball star and personality in Dean, the premiere pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals' "Gashouse Gang" of the 1930s.

The trio became a quartet in the sixth inning as Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn joined the act. At times, the airwaves seemed to be almost cluttered with commentary, occasionally related to what was happening on the AstroTurf, more often not.

It was going into the bottom of the third inning that Dean swung into The Wabash Cannonball. He did one verse, greeted with mild applause by the fans, then unexpectedly broke into a reprise.

Houston's Roger Metzger, stepping into the batter's box, glanced around and stepped out again as the second verse twanged around the ballpark. Home plate umpire John McSherry turned to look up at the broadcasting booth, then flung out his arms as if to say, "Enough, already."

"I'm delighted with the guest celebrity program," Kuhn had said before the game. "It automatically draws a big audience of people who won't normally watch baseball." Whether that's true won't be known for a while—until the ratings come in and a trend can be discerned.

Jets, Charge-A-Checks win LL Major openers

The Coca Cola Jets and Washington Savings Bank's Charge-A-Checks opened the 1973 Little League Majors summer baseball season with wins Monday night at Wilson Field.

The Jets downed Downtown Drug 10-2 in the opener and the Charge-A-Checks nipped the Rotary Wheels 5-4 in the nightcap.

There were no minor league games at Armbrust Field Monday due to wet field conditions. Action is scheduled to open in the minor leagues tonight, according to Lee Lynch, president of the Washington C. H. Little League Association.

THE COCA COLA Jets rode an 11-hit offensive attack and the combined two-hit pitching of Huffman and Lee to register their first win of the season. Bellar sparked the Jets with a triple while Lee, Cobb and Huffman all doubled.

Huffman, who had three hits in four trips to the plate, fanned a total of 10 batters in four innings of work. Tyree and Murphy hurled for the losers and Upthegrove's double was one of only two hits.

The Charge-A-Checks got a double from Brickles and a home run from Storer to highlight a six-hit attack. Leisure and Brickles handled the mound chores for the winners while Dodds and Jones hurled for the Rotary Wheels.

Balaktsis cracked two singles in three appearances to lead the Wheels' seven-hit offensive effort.

Time heals, Bengal trainer says

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—After years of study, Trainer Marv Pollins of the Cincinnati Bengals says the primary treatment for ailing football players is "tincture of time."

"We can speed up the time," said the 34-year-old trainer, "but mostly the treatment consists of self-healing, preventing further injury and rebuilding strength."

Pollins, 1960 graduate of Miami University, has degrees in biological sciences, and a master degree in education.

"Some trainers don't like players hanging around unless they're hurt," said the thin, brown-eyed trainer.

"I like the training room to be a place they can relax—to blow off steam, to feel at home."

Miami, long known as the "Cradle of Coaches," might also be called the "Cradle of Trainers," Pollins said. He started out to be a student manager and climbed under the wing of trainer emeritus Jay Colville, a widely-known innovator in training methods for 40 years.

Colville, said Pollins, helped develop use of rubber padding, sheet metal and tape for injuries. He also studied football helmets.

Coach Paul Brown went to Colville to find a trainer when he established the Cincinnati Bengals in 1968. Pollins worked for Ara Parseghian at Northwestern University at the time.

Brown and Pollins agree on many points in training, said Pollins. They don't use the needle to inject pain killers, no pills and no special diets.

"A football player is a valuable piece of property," said Pollins. "If he is hurt you put in somebody else. A hurt player

PLATING FACILITY — Construction of plating facilities is now in progress at Mac Tools, Inc., in Washington C. H. One of the most costly items in the installation of the plating department is the installation of equipment to be used for treating the waste from the plating operation.

SHIPPING DEPARTMENT — More than 4,000 items manufactured by Mac Tools, Inc., are kept in the Washington C. H. plant. The shipping department was moved here last week from Sabina, meaning bins of all 4,000 items had to be placed for easy access.

Mac Tools see major expansion in WCH

BY LARRY JOSEPH
Record-Herald City Editor

Progress is continuing at the Washington C. H. plant of Mac Tools, Inc., and projections for the next five years indicate an almost doubling of the work force.

The firm, which purchased the former National Cash Register Co. plant here a year ago, is expanding rapidly and plans to employ 750 persons by 1977; 500 in Washington C. H., and 250 in Sabina.

The office staff moved into the Washington C. H. plant last week, and the shipping department and finished goods section have been moved here from Sabina and are to be operational this week.

The move will expand the work force at the Washington C. H. plant from a present 268 to about 325. An additional 100 employees will remain in Sabina.

WHEN MAC TOOLS announced the purchase of the facility here a year ago, plans called for moving the entire Sabina operation to Washington C. H. and using only half of the space here. An expanding market has caused a change, according to Paul Elrod, president of the corporation.

"We now plan to use all of the Washington C. H. plant," Elrod said.

Pentagon officials uncertain volunteer setup will work

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Pentagon officials are becoming increasingly uncertain that the United States can maintain adequate armed forces on an all-volunteer basis.

The Pentagon's official position is that the all-volunteer concept can and will succeed. That has been its line since the outset of the Nixon administration, long before the government stopped drafting young men into the Army last December.

But Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the Army chief of staff, told a reporter recently he is not yet prepared to predict the outcome. Abrams indicated he expects to know by next winter, after about a year of experience without the presence of the draft to spur enlistments.

Another general said privately, "The feeling is growing that it is doubtful we can make it."

In a study for Congress, the General Accounting Office predicted early this month that the armed services could fall as many as 83,000 short of their goal of the 354,000 new enlistments next year unless mental standards are lowered.

But the Army and the other services resist the idea of accepting more men who have not graduated from high school and who score among the lowest in qualification tests.

Ten months ago, the Pentagon put into effect a new $1,500 bonus to lure young men into enlisting for ground-combat jobs in the Army and the Marine Corps, an area of considerable difficulty in raising enough manpower. But late last month, the Pentagon

"Our original plan was to use approximately one-half of the space in Washington C. H., and none of the space in Sabina," he said. The Sabina plant will be retained for the firm's forging operations.

One of the reasons for maintaining the forging operation in Sabina is the suitability of the plant. Elrod said heavy bases are needed under the machinery, plus 24-foot ceilings. The two large buildings in Washington C. H. are not adequate for this type operation.

The two plant sites provide a total of approximately 385,000 square feet of floor space. "We plan to use it all," Elrod commented.

THE COMPANY markets approximately 8,000 hand tool items for mechanics, of which about 4,000 are manufactured either in Washington C. H. or Sabina. The other half of the product line is manufactured by other companies under the Mac Tools brand name, and are handled through associate companies in Talmadge and Medina.

"The demand for our product has grown very rapidly in the last few years," Elrod said. An aggressive sales organization of 822 franchisees in all 50 states and Canada has created the demand, Elrod said.

The change from the standard fractional system to the metric system of measure is also creating a double demand for the firm's products.

Mac Tools has been manufacturing tools in the metric measure for about 10 years, mainly for use on imported vehicles. Now the demand is about 50-50 with the fractional system. Starting next year, at least one auto manufacturer will begin using the metric system on American made products.

ADAPTING the Washington C. H. plant to the needs of Mac Tools has been under way since the plant was acquired. Much of the electrical system has been changed, and the offices have been renovated. Manufacturing began in Washington C. H. in August while the alterations continued. Elrod said some delays were experienced in obtaining major items of equipment, while striving to maintain customer service.

The firm is now in a five-year growth period with projections to 1977. By that time it is expected that all the space will be used in both plants.

Elrod expressed his appreciation to the Chamber of Commerce, businessmen and the Washington C.H. community for its assistance in establishing the plant in Washington C. H.

U. S. trade problems spotlighted this week

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — This is World Trade Week, and as the United States observes it with speeches and dedications and the usual paraphernalia of official ceremony, it cannot forget that trade is also a deadly financial game.

Events of the past few weeks underscore the stakes: The dollar was again hit by a selling wave, speculators fled currencies for gold, the stock market slumped, and world commodity markets were said to be nervous.

All three troubles are related to trade, especially U.S. trade. A financially sound nation is generally thought to be a successful trader. The unsuccessful trader is financially suspect because he runs up deficits, or IOUs.

And so, when the United States, biggest trader of all, the biggest financial force in the world, fails to trade effectively or to keep its economy under control or otherwise convince the world of its strength, fear spreads.

The fact is that while the United States is by far the biggest trader, it has become, in some respects, a weaker trader than before.

It ran up its first trade deficit of the century last year, with imports exceeding exports by $2.7 billion. In the first quarter of 1973 it did manage to raise exports by $2.1 billion to $15.34 billion. But imports rose to $16.26 billion.

And for those who long have viewed U.S. industrial leadership as unassailable, consider this: The first-quarter rise in exports resulted mainly from agricultural shipments; the rise in imports mainly from industrial purchases.

A fact sheet produced for World Trade Week shows the U.S. automotive industry is dependent upon imports from 32 countries, that the telephones we use required 48 materials from 18 nations, that 75 per cent of newsprint is imported.

There are unique reasons for the problem. The United States assumed an enormous role in the security of much of the nonCommunist world in the past 30 years. Not only in Vietnam and Korea, but in Europe, too.

As a result, U.S. expenditures abroad have for almost two decades exceeded the input. The concern over this was lessened somewhat by the working thesis, however naive, that these expenditures were temporary.

The mood of the United States is that of the offended giant, discriminated against by nations that once were weak but which now, either from economic merger such as in Europe, or innovation and self-denial, as in Japan, have themselves become giants.

Nations are loath to forego privileges, and enthusiastic about claiming them.

That, say free trade advocates, is economic warfare. And judging from history, it is easier to wage war than to cooperate. The spirit of World Trade Week is to effect an historic change. No less a goal.

Opening lead - queen of clubs.
When Sylvia first joined the club, she barely knew a spade from a hole in the ground. She thought a coup was something birds did, a pass something the boys made at girls, and a double something you saw in the mirror.
But this didn't stop her from playing in the expert game, where of course she was outclassed. Her unfamiliarity with the niceties of the game was at times shocking and naturally produced countless disasters, but at the same time this very ignorance occasionally resulted in an outstanding triumph that would be discussed by the membership at large for weeks on end.

Take this deal which occurred shortly after Sylvia learned to finesse. This newly found device was a fascinating revelation to her, and she relished each and every opportunity to use it with an unholy zest that scared her partners half to death.

West led a club. Sylvia won in dummy with the ace, returned a trump, and finessed the jack! When this extraordinary gambit succeeded, Sylvia's expression of joy would have melted the heart of the Sphinx. She later lost a heart, a diamond and a club, but made four spades.

East-West felt deeply aggrieved by the unaccustomed finesse, without which Sylvia inevitably would have gone down one. Yet, strangely enough, later analysis proved that Sylvia's play was correct and the only way to assure the contract.

Had the finesse lost to the singleton or doubleton queen, the contract would still have been firmly under control. The defense could cash a club and shift to a diamond, but declarer would win, cash a high trump, and play a heart to the queen and ace. South would then be able to discard a diamond on the king of hearts, using the three of spades as a sure-fire entry to dummy.

On Preventing a Hangover

Sundays are considered the day of rest. In our house most of the day seems to revolve around getting rid of a hangover, for me and my husband.

Some of the people we drink with don't seem to be bothered. Is there any special way to prevent a hangover?

We've tried olive oil to coat our stomachs, but it doesn't help.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D., Mich.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. D.:
The hangover of the chronic alcoholic needs the special intensive help of the psychiatrist, the physician, and probably more important, the direction of the excellent programs of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Such drinkers drink to oblivion. Their purpose is to saturate themselves so completely that reality fades and their fantasy world takes over.

They handle their hangover by starting another bout of drinking.

Your case, however, is the hangover

of the social drinker. The answer lies in mature and sensible moderation.

Most social drinkers have learned that excess drinking only cheats them of the fun of the evening and leaves them in the state you describe.

Surely, by now you and your husband should know your own personal limits of alcohol intake. You cannot compete with the tolerance of others.

There are no drugs that can be taken before, during or after drinking that will spare you the penalty of a severe hangover.

I must introduce an additional thought in the hope it will induce in you more sensible patterns of social drinking.

How many lives besides your own did you endanger the last time you drove home from one of those drinking bouts?

Are gold injections still used for arthritis?

Mr. J. L., Ala.

Dear Mrs. L.:
Injections of gold salts have been used for many years for very specific types of arthritis.

Some doctors are highly enthusiastic about this type of treatment. Others are more reserved about their benefits.

With the advent of cortisone and ACTH, the use of gold salts by injection have been diminished.

Arthritis is a vast complex with many subdivisions. Before any form of treatment is undertaken the exact nature of the arthritis is established.

Often it is necessary to vary the type of treatment, depending on how each person responds to the carefully chosen drugs.

Physical therapy, exercise, heat in various forms, and ultrasonic vibrations, along with massage and passive exercises, are valuable adjuncts to gold and other forms of treatment.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH — Be selfish and reap the benefits of employing the handicapped. They have a fine record of dependability.

CASE DISMISSED

The case of Paul N. Stark, of Cleveland, against Fred LeBeau Jr., of Mount Sterling, was dismissed in Common Pleas Court Monday at the request of the plaintiff. The case had been in and out of court since January 1971.

Stark, who owned property next to the LeBeau farm in Mount Sterling, allegedly had been granted an easement over a small strip of LeBeau's land for the movement of livestock and farm machinery in 1957.

LeBeau put locked gates across the access in 1969, and in 1971, Stark sought action from the courts to reopen the passage. In July of 1972, Court of Common Pleas found in favor of Stark, the plaintiff, and ordered that he be given right of passage on the land in question.

However, in January 1973, the appellate court found fault with the ruling made by the Court of Common Pleas and sent the case back for retrial.

Following a private settlement, the court acted on a request by Stark that the case be dismissed.
